Mullendore quitting ACHS, returning to Muncie

By KEN PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Antioch Community High School principal Dr. Susan Mullendore will leave at the end of June to become principal of Muncie Central High School in Indiana.

Efforts to identify a new principal were scheduled to begin Wednesday afternoon. An attempt will be made to hire a successor by early to mid-July.

Mullendore has served ACHS for two years. Superintendent Dr. Dennis Hockney said of his relationship with Mullendore, "we have been partners in developing a vision for the future of this high school. It has been an exciting two years. Dr. Mullendore has contributed greatly to an improved morale among the student body. She will be missed by students and their parents."

Hockney identified one attribute of the school's vision that he could trace to Mullendore's influence. "The whole organization of the school in the future," he said. "She personalized the school by breaking it into smaller pieces. We had just completed that part of the vision, the personalization of the high school." Mullendore said that she is "proud of that."

Mullendore noted that the opportunity for students to feel they are part of a school can be lost as it increases in size through consolidation or population increases. Therefore, she worked hard to bring real participation in school life to the student body. "Without a sense of belonging, we can't establish roots that allow children to fly."

Hockney said Mullendore achieved this goal by being with the students. "She spends a lot of time

Concert to send band to Disney

By KEN PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

"It's going to be fabulous; come if you love music," said Barbara Johnson, president of Antioch Band Parents.

Johnson is totally committed to how great a May 30th Friday evening in Antioch can be at their jazz club, Club ACHS, in the High School Commons area.

"This is a great duo," she said of 1st Avenue, "and anyone who comes is going to enjoy themselves."

"They play for three hours with two 15 minute breaks." She describes them as a contemporary jazz playing duo somewhat in the tradition of Kenny G and David Sanborn. Plus, they play original music they have written and music by other musicians.

All for the price of a case of pop. "They are the foremost contemporary jazz duo in southeastern Wisconsin," she says, "but, they sound like more than two people." Jason Weber and Mike DeRose have been playing in clubs in Milwaukee, Racine, and Kenosha.

This jazz concert is "the first time it has been done," said band parent Sheri Fries. It is one of several fundraising activities undertaken by Antioch Marching Sequoias members to raise money for a trip to Disney World where the band will play.

"They will perform in one of the night-time parades at Disney World." The band will also receive some instruction from Disney people, and they will play in two communities along the way.

"This is a first trip," said Sheri Fries. It's been planned for six months. "The kids have been working hard toward this. They are really

New law would make waters safer

Legislation which addresses drunk boating, flotation devices, child boating sits on Edgar's desk

By KEN PATCHEN
Staff Reporter

Legislation launched by Lake County elected officials to improve boating safety has landed on Governor Jim Edgar's desk for his signature.

The law provides improved requirements for child safety, an altered basis for police to stop boaters suspected of alcohol use, and greater control of the use of personal watercraft.

"This is an initial safety bill," said Judy Martini, Lake County board representative for District 1, Antioch. "It has passed both the House and Senate pretty much overwhelmingly with the help of Sen. Adeline Georakis and Rep. Robert Churchill."

The legislation contains three major provisions to improve boating safety. The Boat Registration and Safety Act is amended to "provide that a police officer who has reasonable suspicion, instead of probable cause, to believe that a person is under the influence (of alcohol) may request that individual to take a breath screening test," said Martini. "It makes it much easier for the marine units to pull them over for a check." She expects the county to be more aggressive in its approach to removing people who are drinking from the water this summer.

The second set of legislative provisions "is my favorite," says Martini. "Children under 13 have to wear personal flotation devices" in boats creating a wake. These are to be personal flotation devices approved by the U.S. Coast Guard. She notes that these devices are available that are the size of a 'fanny pack' and cost about $30. They inflate when they come into contact with water.

"When children get older, they will remember the importance of these devices and have their children wear them and continue to wear them." At the present time, the law requires only that a life jacket be in the boat, said Martini.

Kabbes may consult for Fox Waterway Agency

By JEFF PATERSON
Staff Reporter

It may not be good-bye after all. Although the Fox Waterway Agency will be accepting the resignation of Executive Director Karen Kabbes, it may retain her services as a consultant.

The idea was formally proposed by Director Stan Mill at the Agency's May 22 meeting. Noting in a letter to the Agency board that Kabbes' "hard work has brought us from the depths of despair back to respectability," Mill proposed that she be hired "until dredging regulations have been changed by variance and the Geo-Tubes project has been started."

Chairman Dr. William Dam enthusiastically endorsed the idea, his only misgiving being that the Agency would still have to "spend more to take longer and get less done" after replacing Kabbes.

"If I can be of help, I'm more than happy to work with them," Kabbes said, adding that she had "unique talents and experience," to offer the Agency if hired in a consulting role.

Although he did not object to the idea of Kabbes doing future consulting work, Director Ron Baker remained adamant that he was right in supporting a motion to reduce her salary with the Waterway because she had been unable to provide staff with day-to-day direction and supervision.

"When I have an employee who cannot do half of the job they were hired for, normally they would be replaced," Baker said.

The tabled motion to reduce Kabbes' salary by $20,000 was lost 4-2, with only Marshall Lowe siding with Baker. Director Mill would not elaborate on why he had withdrawn his former support of the motion, indicating that his letter composed his statement on the matter.

Godspell arrives in Antioch this summer

A constantly changing style of music, the ensemble acting class, thoroughly dedicated stage professionals, and the Antioch Community High School's air-conditioned auditorium theater will come together two weekends in July in a production of the musical "Godspell."

Phoenix Rising, a production company with the direction of Jerod J. Howard, will expand community theater offerings this summer and present what Howard considers a more authentic staging of the play than is usually seen.

He once said, "if I ever decided to direct or get the opportunity, I'd like to do that show," said Howard. Now he has that opportunity and is working with a cast of 13 and a production staff of 11 people to mount Godspell for three days on the weekends of July 18 and July 25.

"There are a lot of talented people in Lake County," Howard says, and he looks forward to working with many of them on this production.

They include "People I've learned from and some new to the area but very experienced." The set designer, for example, he describes as "amazing." "He builds award-winning sets out of nothing."

Originally from Chicago, Howard later lived in Lake Villa. He went to Grayslake Community High School. He has been associated with the professional entertainment industry and with Antioch's long established PM&L Theater. He was the artistic director of Off Broadway Dinner Theater in Zion, has acted in PM&L productions, painted sets, and swept the stage.

His most recent movie work was as extras in "My Best Friend's Wedding" and "Home Alone 3." In "My Best Friend's Wedding" he had no dialogue, but he did have "great scenes." That was a great experience," he says.

"Godspell is a very improvisational show," he explains, "very physical show." It involves dance and performance parts. The music is provided by piano, guitar, and bass. It is a challenging production musically because "the music is of constantly changing styles. There is a little bit of everything in there — jazz, gospel, folk, country, rock, pop music," he says. He knows that "people really like the show because they know the score." The most well known song from the original production is "Day By Day."

"I want to bring back more of a gospel flavor to the show. I've seen other performances, and they were presented in a more pop music style," Howard explained.

Howard sees the show as a strong musical. "It is a more spiritual show that deals with life values," he explains, when contrasting the play to the rock opera "Jesus Christ Superstar." He thinks the play comes across as more of an affirming and uplifting production, also.

Information about group ticket sales is available from Donna Shehorn, the producer, at 395-4529. Tickets will be available at the door. It is a "completely non-profit venture" that may yield some money for the Antioch Community High School Fine Arts Department to expand their existing budget.

Auditions for the production were May 16 and 17 at the ACHS auditorium.

NEW LAW: Would make waters safer, waits for governor to sign use of personal watercraft. It will be necessary for personal watercraft to be capable of carrying three people — the driver, the water skier, and the spotter. "They have three-person personal watercraft now." Also, only people who are 16 or older will be allowed to rent them. Now, people 12 and older can rent personal watercraft.

Martini credits many people for their work on creating and passing the legislation.

"I deeply thank Senator George Karis and Representative Bob Churchill for addressing the need to update the water safety ordinances," said Martini. "I received a lot of technical support from the Department of Natural Resources, from the coast guard, Lake and McHenry County Marine Units of the Sheriff's Department, and Steve Blackstone of the National Transportation Safety Board." Martini added that Blackstone was "very supportive of the life jacket provisions."

MADD [Mothers Against Drunk Drivers] was supportive in the hearings and offered testimony. "We had representatives from McHenry County on the ad-hoc committee," she said. Others providing key technical support were Captain Willie Smith of the Marine Patrol and Kenneth Martinez of the U.S. Coast Guard.

A key element was the support provided by placement of the legislation on the Lake County and McHenry County legislative packet in 1996. Martini said that this legislation was part of Lake and McHenry's list of key legislation that County Board Representatives agreed that area legislators could work to pass into law.

Hearings on the proposed legislation were held in Antioch in the summer of 1996. According to Martini, "time and time again we heard people comment on the need for water safety education." That need is not addressed in the current version of the bill before the Governor. Martini expects that future legislation may address the need for improved water safety education requirements. She noted that boating safety courses are offered on the Internet by Boat/U.S. (<http://www.boat.us.com>). There is also a Boat/U.S. Foundation Course Hotline (1-800-336-BOAT).

Martini expects water safety legislation to continue to be a focus of her work. "This is the third most frequented waterway in the United States according to the U.S. Coast Guard," said Martini. There are approximately 26,000 stickers sold for boat use in the Chain of Lakes area each year, she said. —By Kenneth Patchen

Duha honored for helping to brighten days through Telecare

Long term Community Telecare service volunteer Ruth Duha was recently honored at a banquet as she retired from 18 years of service with the telephone outreach program.

Duha is one of 17 volunteers who have provided a highly personalized level of daily care for people within seven miles of Antioch. The volunteers call people on the telephone to make sure that they are safe and do not need to have someone look in on them at their home.

"We feel this is a very personal service. For some, this is the only call they get. Some like to talk, and others do not," said current Community Telecare Program Coordinator Mary Polley.

"Ruth Duha began when the program was under the direction of the Lake County Chaplaincy Service with Bernida Johnson as local director," said Polley. "Also attending [the banquet] was Barbara Goetzelman who founded Community Telecare in 1973," she said.

Although the meeting was an annual potluck, it served to focus attention on the need for new volunteers and clients. Polley said they "could handle a few more [clients], but not much more." The ratio of volunteers and clients is such that people "are only responsible for making calls a few times a month." She added, "Some clients have been on the program for maybe 20 years or more."

Community Telecare maintains detailed assistance books for the people they call. The records notify volunteers of people to call in emergencies, but also contain other information. "We have pictures of them," says Polley. "At Christmas we take them treats and do personal visits." On birthdays or other important occasions, cards will be sent out.

"We've had people who are young, but are physically impaired," she said. This is a service for people who need a regular call. Although other programs exist, they are often automated and less personal. If a volunteer finds help is needed, emergency personnel can be alerted to investigate. Over the years, it has been necessary to do this for a few people. Volunteers also make referrals to Love, Inc. when errands, appointments, and chores need to be made.

"You just feel that you've brightened someone's day. Sometimes we help them get things they need," she said.

Duha is not the only long term service provider. Lucile Eberman "has been with it a long time." When asked to name others, Polley holds back. "When you start naming, there is just no end. So many do so much to help us."

Community Telecare will accept calls from 9 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. Monday through Friday at 395-1098 or 395-0762. Love, Inc. is in Libertyville and available from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at 680-5462.

CONCERT: To send band to Disney excited. We hope all goes well," she said.

Band members have sold pizzas, summer products, and have conducted a raffle. The money will be used to defray the estimated cost of the $50,000 trip, about $450 to $500 per student. There are 115 students in the band, but only 80 will make the trip south. Parents have also been raising bread. "The Antioch Music Parents had a food booth in February at the Trade Fair in Antioch," she noted.

The Antioch Marching Sequoils will leave for Disney World June 14th and spend four or five days there. When they return, band members and parents start fund raising, again, for a Choir trip to Toronto, Canada next year.

Sheri Fries said, "Tickets can be purchased in advance for $5 at Lakes Area Music Center, State Bank of the Lakes, First National Bank—Employee Owned, and from band members." Tickets are also available at First Chicago Bank in Antioch. They will be available for $6 at the door.

MULLENDORE: Leaving ACHS, returning to Muncie with students in the building out of her office." He notes that she is with them in the hallways, the Commons area, and in school activities.

Mullendore explained she wanted "to establish some trusting relationships between the administration and the student body." She listened to students, let them make decisions that effect their school, and she thought they had taken on those responsibilities. She agreed with Hockney that she was "very, very visible to the student body."

She is not leaving for the money.

"I don't do this for the money. It's not about that. It's about family," she said.

She stressed a couple of times that "this move is not to leave Antioch. I want to take Antioch with me to Indiana. . . it's been a wonderful time."

Phillip Delany, President of the District 117 Board of Education, said that Mullendore made a difference. "Susan was the right person at the right time for the position of principal of Antioch Community High School."

Parents Day Out is "an outreach program for the community," says Director Shelly Bird. "Parents use us as a place to drop off children for quality temporary care."

The five hour program is non-denominational and does not follow a strict curriculum program since students may attend on an erratic schedule. The program covers broad areas of instruction into which children can fit their understanding of concepts without having been there all the time.

The program is available from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday. It is closed in the summer after the June 5th graduation. The program generally follows the Antioch school system of holidays.

Persons charged with a crime are innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

ANTIOCH

Charged with DUI

Antioch Police arrested Thomas A. Ulsch, 41, Antioch, while he was traveling south bound on Tiffany Road from North Avenue May 19 at 6:52 p.m. for DUI. He was driving a 1978 Chevy Van and allegedly went over the roadway line numerous times, according to the police report. Ulsch turned down the opportunity to take a breathalyzer test. He will appear in court June 10 in Waukegan.

Antioch Police also arrested Monty E. Grasswick, 38, Antioch, at the west bound lane of 334 Depot Street for DUI on May 21 at 1:50 a.m.. He was driving a 1988 Chevy Van. Grasswick refused the opportunity to take a breathalyzer test. He will appear in Waukegan Court June 10.

Arrested for cannabis possession

Antioch Police arrested Robert J. Nall, 19, Lake Villa, at Routes 179 and 59 May 20 at 1:42 a.m. for failure to signal, operating an uninsured vehicle, and unlawful possession of cannabis. He was driving a 1985 Ford. Nall was released on a personal recognizance bond pending a June 25 court date in Grayslake.

According to the police report, he allegedly told officers that "my friends smoked pot in my car the other day." Officers found a glass pipe from the driver's side of the floor board which allegedly contained cannabis residue.

Man suffers heart attack while biking

A Gurnee man suffered a heart attack and later died despite efforts to revive him at a Lake County Forest Preserve trail.

Stephen Twadell, age 50, was in full arrest when Gurnee Fire Dept. paramedics arrived. He was biking on a trail located seven-tenths of a mile north of Route 41 on May 24.

"A member of his family was out biking with him and tried to do CPR as well as bystanders," Gurnee Fire Chief Tim McGrath said.

Because of the location of the 1:11 p.m. incident, an all-terrain vehicle owned by Newport Fire Department, a pick-up truck and even bicycles were used.

"It is an agreement we have with Newport because an ambulance might not be able to get there," McGrath said.

Twadell was transported to St. Therese Medical Center in Waukegan, where he was pronounced dead.

McGrath said the victim did respond somewhat to efforts to revive him.

Newport Fire Dept. has the vehicle ready to respond to such calls on horse trails and areas which cannot be traversed by regular four-wheel vehicles, according to a spokesperson. It has been available for a year and one half.

Marine Unit to increase O.U.I. patrols

Lake County Sheriff Gary Del Re has directed the Sheriff's Police Marine Safety Unit to increase their vigilance for intoxicated boaters. Specific patrols will be scheduled with the primary duty of apprehending individuals who are operating under the influence of alcohol and/or narcotics. These patrols will also be in effect during holiday weekends.

Several Marine Patrol Deputy Sheriffs were trained to perform certified Breathalyzer tests—which are admissible in court. Additionally, there will be a portable breathalyzer onboard the patrol boat in order to administer the test

"on water" instead of at the Marine Base. This will enable the Marine Unit to immediately determine if the boater is in fact impaired without inconveniencing the citizen who is able to pass the test. It will also permit the Deputy Sheriffs to reduce the processing time and return to service promptly.

Sheriff Del Re is requesting the public's assistance to make Lake County waterways safe for the responsible boater and her/his passengers. Citizens who observe reckless or impaired boaters are encouraged to report the offending vessel to the Sheriff's Police by using VHF Marine Radio Channel 16 or calling 587-4470. When calling get any basic information such as color, length, make, number of persons on board, description of the operator, and registration numbers of the boat.

Illinois law forbids operating a watercraft if you have a blood alcohol level greater than .10 percent. Illinois law also permits marine patrol agencies to conduct safety boardings and inspections. The Marine Safety Unit will continue to periodically board and inspect vessels with the mission of educating the boater committing a minor transgression and removing the intoxicated boater from the water.

Sometimes change is good

Dieting has never been an issue in my life. I wasn't born with good looks, an abundance of money or even a smidgen of artistic talent, but my body was fortunate enough to contain a metabolism that let me eat just about anything my tastebuds desired and never be saddled with extra baggage. Even after having babies my birthing hips had no problem accommodating my single digit-sized jeans for the ride home from the hospital.

Well age is creeping up on me and good looks, money and talent still escape me, and my remarkable metabolism must have taken its leave as well. The kids were weighing themselves a while back and wanted dear old mom to take a hop on that little square box laying on the bathroom floor that never beckoned me before.

To my absolute terror, I was greeted with three very disturbing numbers that had never before shown their ugly little sum in that tiny little window where the numbers appear. I jumped off, removed my sneakers, then hopped back on—yep, there were those three little numbers still. Once again I backed off, shucked off few items of clothing and gingerly stepped back on the scale—oh my goodness, even my sense of humor fell by the wayside. How could this be?

JINGLE FROM PRINGLE

Granted when we trekked up to Lake Geneva for a weekend of fun and frolicking several weeks back I did notice my once flat tummy bulging a bit and feeling a little snugger in my bathing suit—but we all expand a little during those long, cold, inactive winter months don't we? A few pounds maybe, but what I was tugging around consisted of a whole nother room addition. How it got there and who contracted the work was a total mystery to me—and I wanted it torn down—now. Bring in the wrecking ball and put this bad puppy to rest.

So, I took the bull by the horns and took a trip to the local market. I purchased enough food to feed an entire nation for a month and there wasn't a gram of fat, in any of it. So, for one week nothing crossed my lips that wasn't low fat, non-fat, fat-free, sugar-free, and taste free. Not a french fry, not a spoonful of ice-cream, not an ounce of chocolate.

A week passed and the bathroom scale loomed up at me from the floor like a candy bar on the counter, daring me to approach it, unwrap it and consume it. I stepped on the scale, feeling ever so confident that my week of a rabbit food diet would have a big reward. I lost one pound. I celebrated by having a chocolate sundae, complete with whip cream, nuts and a cherry, for breakfast. Guess I have to go shopping and buy a bigger bathing suit—age does have its advantages.

And so goes another "Jingle from Pringle"—don't forget to call 395-6364.

Readers with information for "Jingle from Pringle" should call Lynn Pringle at 395-6364.

Gooch: State-bound in three events

After David Gooch qualified for the state track and field meet in the discus last year, he was in for a surprise.

"They impounded the discus because they said it was not regulation. He has been using a new discus all this year," said ACHS coach Norm Hahn.

Gooch threw a 150-0 effort in the discus at the Grayslake Sectional. He finished second behind Lake Zurich's Thor Solvorson. Both qualify for the IHSAA State Track and Field meet May 30-31 at Eastern Illinois University in Charleston.

Gooch, a junior, also qualified with a 100-meter time of 11.1 and a 200-meter time of 22.5, both second-place efforts.

"I'd say the discus is my best chance. I have not done my best yet and hope to improve," said Gooch.

Hahn agreed with his standout's assessment.

"His best chance is the discus, although if he gets psyched up, he may be able to get through the preliminaries. There has not been that many good discus throws this year. A 160-0 effort could place," said Hahn.

Jason Erlenborn cleared 11-6 in the pole vault for third place, but did not qualify.

Freshman Quinn Gooch, Dave's brother, was sixth in the triple jump.

"He increased his best effort by three feet to 41.5. That is a big jump for a freshman," said Hahn.

Antioch had 30 points as a team in a meet won by Zion-Benton's 96 points. "We have an awful young team. We will have almost everybody back next year. We are building for the future," said Hahn.

ACHS looks for long run after NSC co-crown

Something big is about to happen when girls softball players ask for help taking the top off the water cooler.

Those in the know get out of the way. Those who are slow get drenched in a post-game celebration.

Antioch softball players teamed up to drench star pitcher Jamie Silarski after she one-hit Warren in six innings for an 8-1 Antioch win.

The win gave Antioch a sweep for the season series with Warren (a 3-0 win preceded that) but more importantly, allowed the Sequoits to use two words that have not been spoken with Antioch softball since 1985—conference champions.

"I have known Jamie for seven years. This is awesome. We wanted to score some early runs and put the pressure on them," said ACHS catcher Linda DiSalvo.

"I am so very proud of these girls. At the beginning of the season no one, not even ourselves, gave us a chance to be successful," said Steve Wapon, who guided the North Suburban Conference co-champs.

"It was the second game against Libertyville. We had lost the first 4-3 but came back to win 10-1. We started to believe that we could beat people we weren't supposed to," said Wapon.

ACHS ended the NSC season 13-2, tied with Mundelein for first place. "Working with Linda has been so much fun," said Silarski.

ACHS, coming off a non-conference loss, struck first as Nicole Langley walked and scored in the first. She would later have a third-inning triple.

Sarah Rockow singled in the first and had a triple in the second as ACHS built a 4-0 lead.

Three singles, aggressive base running and a couple of Warren errors accounted for a three-run Antioch fifth.

Any dispute on the earlier hit was erased when Warren pushed a run across in the seventh inning with two singles. Such details did not concern Antioch's squad at the moment.

After a 14-5 regular season from Silarski, the Sequoits are hoping to do a lot more jumping in this week's Sectional at Woodstock.

Steel Visions

Sports, dance and Christianity inspire sculptor to transform metal into art

By ELIZABETH EAKEN
Staff Reporter

The light industrial building on Route 59 in Lake Villa Township is a very unlikely place for an art gallery to appear, but it has proved the perfect location for just such a business with the opening of the Niemi Fine Art Gallery & Sculpture Studio.

The studio and gallery are home to sculptor Bruce Niemi, who specializes in creating works of art out of stainless steel.

Because of the enormous pieces Niemi creates, he needed a studio large enough to hold the equipment to cut and weld the stainless steel sheets.

The large space in the industrial park afforded Bruce the opportunity to create the gallery space in addition to the studio.

An easy going approach to art is the style preferred by Bruce and his wife Susan, who are partners in the Niemi Fine Art Gallery & Sculpture Studio.

"I want to keep it very relaxed with no pretension. I'm not going to be dressed up to run the gallery," Bruce said.

He plans to work in his studio located to the rear of the gallery and when a customer comes in, he will gladly take time out to show them the artwork and talk with them about the artists.

The gallery's formation was the result of location, space availability, a dream and the desire to help out fellow friends in the art world. Bruce had contemplated opening a gallery for about five years and when he moved his studio into the new location it presented the perfect opportunity.

The gallery, although untraditional on the exterior, is traditional on the interior. Bruce and Susan renovated the existing office within his studio space and celebrated their grand opening the weekend of May 17, to a full house of around 150 people steadily streaming through the door.

The Niemis sent invitations and had the support of friends at the opening but they're even more excited about the number of people coming in who happened to be driving by and decided to venture in.

Bruce is a successful sculptor who followed in the footsteps of his father Frank Niemi, a metal sculptor who created ornamental metal fabrication for displays used in Chicago stores. Bruce said he remembers attending art shows with his father when he was as young as 5-years-old. He completed his first sculpture in junior high.

"My drive is my life," explained Bruce of his work.

He said his interest in sports (he earned a wrestling scholarship to Northern Illinois University), dance, gymnastics and his strong Christian background all come into play with his sculpting. The stainless steel sculptures Bruce creates vary in size and some are occasionally painted to give different effects.

The fact that people aren't brought up with sculpture is something he recognizes. It is his mission to educate people about the wonderful aspects of sculpture when they come to the gallery or see his work at an art show.

"Sculpture is something people love and feel they have to have. Others like it but don't now what to do with it," said Bruce. He often tells them anywhere they would put a plant that's somewhere they could put sculpture and they can in turn give the plant to someone they care about.

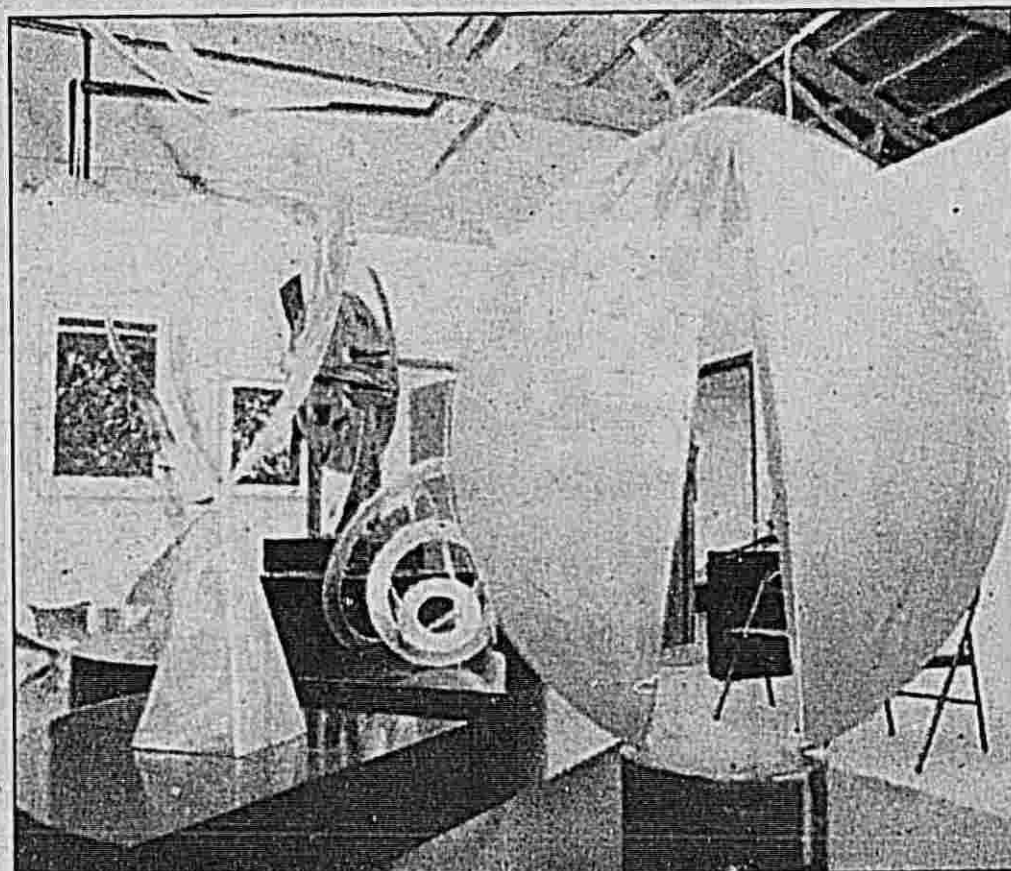

In his work positive and negative shapes are combined. The changing shape of a sculpture viewed from different angles is very important to him. The space behind the gallery is where Bruce spends his days creating the sculptures that are sometimes massive, while others are small enough to sit on a coffee table.

One example of his life's influence on his work is a piece which is multi-representational inspired by the love he and Susan have for being near the water and their spending a lot of time in the Caribbean. It may resemble a palm tree, a mermaid, dolphins swimming in the ocean or all these things, depending on the viewer's interpretation.

The Real Cinderella's Castle

by JIM WARNKEN, PRESIDENT
NORTH STAR TRAVEL, INC.

It's probably Disney's most famous "trademark" next to Mickey himself - Cinderella's castle at Disney Land. But where did Walt get the inspiration for this fairytale creation?

Walt Disney's Cinderella's castle is actually modeled after a real castle located just south of Munich, Germany in the scenic Bavarian Alps.

I recently had an opportunity to visit Neuschwanstein Castle (it's real name) and it struck me as more of a fantasy than Disney's recreation.

After a short ride from Munich in a very old German train, I got off at the small town of Fussen. It had been snowing most of the morning. Not the wet sloppy stuff, but rather a fluffy white powder that covered the surrounding hills to a depth of about 4 inches. I looked up through the mist to see a fairytale castle which appeared to be floating on a cloud.

I walked the couple of miles to the base of the mountain on which Neuschwanstein is actually built. From there I took a horse-drawn carriage (actually more of a wagon) up the mountain (Alp?) to the castle itself.

The castle is open to the public and tours are given in both German and English. You are not allowed to take pictures inside the Castle itself; however, plenty are available for purchase in the gift shop.

Neuschwanstein is German for New Swan Stone. It seems King Ludwig, who built the Castle in 1869 had a thing about the opera Swan Lake. In fact, the swan theme is found throughout the Castle.

Though King Ludwig was considered to be insane, Neuschwanstein Castle brings about thoughts of a "Mad Genius." This castle of the 1800's had a telephone to Munich, hot and cold running water and even automatic turning spits for game, operated by rising hot air in the chimney turning a turbine. In fact, the entire castle is centrally heated by hot air from immense stoves in the cellar.

Despite all its modern conveniences, Neuschwanstein Castle still has all the gold, crystal and stained glass you would expect in a German King's castle.

Graduation—It's a matter of degree

When I watched my second son graduate from the world of diapers to the world of Charmin, I felt relief at having one less mess to clean. And on that day when we held up his preschool diploma with pride, I secretly looked forward to having entire half days to myself once he began kindergarten.

But watching that same son graduate from high school feels more like drowning.

With each cap-and-gowned step that Sean takes, I relive our moments together, from those first bow-legged baby steps to the day he got his driver's license and kept pulling it out of his wallet to gaze upon it as though it were a picture of Cindy Crawford.

Memories float by, tearing a little at my heart as they go: my blue-eyed restless baby who, once he realized he could stand, rarely sat down again; that same baby as he grew to become a multi-lingual toddler, always trying to confuse the little neighbor girls, Kirsta and Stephanie, by referring to them in his own version of Chinese—BEETA! SECKAMIE! and for many years, he was our very own grade-school Ninja, who was particularly good at delivering misplaced karate chops to male relatives who happened to be the wrong height.

Not anymore. Now, as my son receives his diploma and the principal shakes his hand, I know for certain that those days are gone. An while I'm bursting with pride at his accomplishment, a tear or two escapes down my cheeks—Ninja boy will soon be karate-chopping his way out into the world, and I will not longer be beside him to witness it.

LIFE'S A BEAR

It's funny how when our children are little, the days seem to pass so slowly. Time is counted in diaper changes and lost sleep. Looking back on Sean's terrible twos, I wonder if "Groundhog Day" was written by the parent of a 2-year-old, for that year seemed to be an endless repetition of the same word—"No!" (Of course, for his little sister, it has been one and a half years and counting, so maybe that wasn't so bad).

And then there was the longest, most worrisome time of all—the ages of 13 to 17. I would compare the feeling of being the parent of a teenager to how a cook feels when they've just made a new recipe for company—nervous. You think you added all the right ingredients, but you're still not sure how it's going to turn out.

I kept waiting for phone calls—from the hospital, the police, from angry mothers of teenage girls. Fortunately, the calls never came, and my son and I made it through those years remarkably unscathed.

But now, both the clock and the calendar seem to be moving ahead quicker than Dennis Rodman can get called for a technical. Even Sean himself is amazed (and maybe a little scared, too) that he has suddenly arrived at the place most children long to be—in the world of adults.

"Can you believe it, mom? My high school days are over. I'm a graduate!"

"No, I really can't believe it. Worse yet, once people find out, who is going to believe that I'm 29 anymore?"

"Mom—wake up. No one believes that now!"

"See? It's already happening!"

And it's happening much too fast. I can only hope that he's ready—I know I'm not.

Donna Abear can also be heard as a guest humorist on WXLC 102.3 FM's morning show at 7:10 a.m. on alternate Mondays.

STEEL: Sculptor opens gallery

Another influence his spiritual side sparked is the Genesis series.

One sculpture in the series represents the creation of earth with several small spheres incorporate to represent the sun, moon, scattering of plants and one large circle to represent the earth. Branches represent the growth of life and a triangle cut in the center of the sphere represents the holy trinity.

Susan and Bruce are hoping the gallery will draw a lot of summer people who come to the area on the weekends and in the winter he hopes people will consider them as a place to purchase gifts.

"People stopped at the opening as they were coming up to put their piers in. Everyone was excited... there's a lot of development going on around here and hopefully some newcomers will want fine art. I feel we're reasonably priced and we also sell limited edition prints," he said.

The gallery also carries serigraphs and Bruce is able to help a customer locate something to fit their tastes through his acquaintances with many artists and their works.

He is putting in bins to hold multiple works of the artists in addition to those displayed on the walls, but will only have around 35 works total in the gallery at any given time.

Bruce has many pieces that have been purchased for public displays including: the Eternal Flame War Memorial, in Worth, Ill.; Interim, at the Kane County Courthouse; Praise, at the Phelps Tool and Die company in Kansas City; Peace, at the College of Lake County; Holy Spirit Flame, at Lutheran Church of All Saints, in Fox Lake; and Vernon Hills at the Vernon Hills Village Hall.

Current artists on exhibition at the gallery include Bart Horn of Wadsworth, Al Lachman of Grayslake, Stephanie Nadolski of Barrington, Janet O'Neal of Santa Fe, N. M. and Gail Collier of Barrington.

The gallery is located at 39370 N. Route 59, Lake Villa. It is open weekdays from 1-5 p.m. and Saturdays by appointment, 265-2343.

MOVIE PICK

Bruce takes 'Fifth' with sci-fi thrills

If you think you've seen it all when it comes to computerized shocks and thrills, good old "Die Hard" Bruce Willis himself raises sci-fi kicks to new heights in "The Fifth Element."

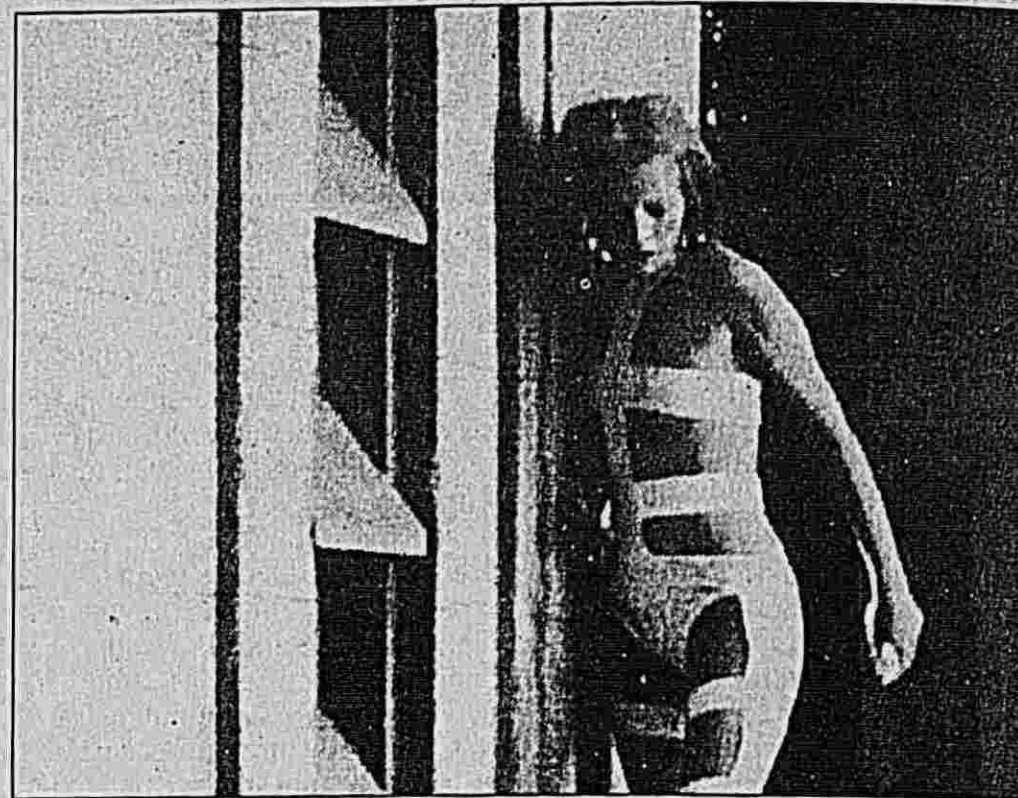

Everything about this movie is a bit much including the overdone direction of Luc Besson of "La Femme Nikita" fame, the villain who is just a bit too villainous, played by Gary Oldman, and the supposed scene stealer, played by Chris Tucker.

For a few moments Tucker almost qualifies for that job, but he soon becomes extremely pesky in his fast-talking parody of The Artist Formerly Known as Prince.

The only two people in the movie that add a balance of normalcy are Willis and his love interest, a clone named Milla, played by the gorgeous Milla Jovovich, stunning in very few or lots of designer clothes.

An insane futuristic New York is where the action takes place, complete with flying taxicabs, one of which Willis is the driver.

"The Fifth Element" opened the Cannes Film Festival this year, and like another Cannes favorite "Pulp Fiction," despite its ridiculousness, its razzle dazzle kept us glued to the screen the entire two hours that this

Leelo, played by the gorgeous Milla Jovovich is Bruce Willis' love interest in "The Fifth Element."

PG-13 rated bit of mesmerizing insanity runs.

Bring some Alka Seltzer along for this fantastic ride because all this mystifying glitz gave us a headache! This includes the complicated and sometimes stupid plot.

As usual, the earth faces annihilation from a fiery mass headed its way. Oldman is somehow connected to this fiery evil and it's up to Willis, earth, water, air and fire, and the fifth element, Jovovich, the perfect being and man's most precious possession, to stop the insanity, together, we think!

We won't pretend we understood it all, in fact I would worry if we had.

This is a mad roller coaster ride from start to finish that has to be seen on the big screen to be appreciated.

The wisecracking Willis is perfect in his usual part of a very human superman. This role should endear him even more to Europe's action fans.

We can't say that this is really a great movie, but it is greater in so many things that it dares you not to find something to enjoy about it.

On the basis that it's a masterpiece of blaze and glory, we give "The Fifth Element" four out of five stars, reserving the last star to swing on to preserve our sanity.—by Gloria Davis

Parents may need help for child's behavior problems

Dear Dr. Singer, Our 7 year old daughter is having some behavior problems (what we consider to be mild) for about the last six months. At times it's better and at times it's worse. We're not quite sure if we should get professional help for this. I wanted to write you and ask if you might have any suggestions or guidelines about this decision and also any information on looking for a person who would do this kind of work? We just want to make sure we're doing the right thing for her and we're also fairly sure that many other parents might be interested in this as well. P.R.

Dear P.R.,

I'm glad you did address it to the column, because I'm sure that other parents are also interested in this as well. I also applaud your concern for your daughter. Even mild behavior problems can cause habits and future problems. It's always best to address it quickly. If what you are doing is appropriate and is working, then the simple answer to your question is, "No, you probably don't need anyone to help you." If, however, the behavior keeps repeating itself over time and isn't improving, chances are, there is something about the way people are responding to it that is keeping it in place. In that situation, I would recommend getting someone objective and neutral involved so the problem doesn't become a permanent pattern.

Regarding who to see and how to get to them, I am including here another excerpt from my book, "Why Time Out Doesn't Work. A Straight Look at Discipline." It just seems to fit what you're looking for here. Good luck!

Do we need help with our child's behavior or can we handle this on our own?

This is a question you will be able to answer better than I can, but I would like to give you a few guidelines to look for before you make your decision.

First, if it's a new problem and you've just begun implementing a behavior program, give it a few weeks to work before panicking and figuring it isn't working and running to a therapist's office. Remember that when you are setting limits and holding your child responsible for his or her behavior, you are, in essence, taking power away from your child. Power that he or she might be used to having. This in itself will cause a lot of resistance. Hold firm to what you've learned and be consistent. If you're doing it correctly, the behavior will get worse for a short time and then get better. If you feel like you're too shaky with setting limits, or are unsure of what to do to set limits, it's probably a good idea to get some help with it. Also, if you feel that your child's behavior is too out of control for you to handle, get help now.

If you are going to seek help, I'd highly recommend that you go to a Child Behavior Specialist. This is a person who has a lot of training with kids and behavior. This is also a person who can get you where you need to go as quickly as possible. The idea here is not to look for someone who can tell your child how to behave. Rather, the idea is to find someone who can back you up on what to do and send you home to do it. Chances are, you already know what to do, you just need to do it. A therapist's role should be that of short-term educator and coach and nothing more than that!

Two other things you should know about before seeking treatment is the difference between psychologists and psychiatrists and how much time you should expect to be in treatment.

A psychologist is more of a talk therapist. Psychologists do not prescribe medication and usually use talking or family therapy to get where they're going. A psychiatrist can prescribe medication and do talk therapy, although there are many psychiatrists I know who prefer to handle only the medication side and not the talk side. There are also masters level therapists out there. When looking for a therapist to help you with your child's behavior, the three things that will be most important to ask are:

- How much experience have you had in dealing with kids' behavior problems?
- Do you involve parents in treatment?
- How long is the average length of treatment?

The answers you want to hear to these questions are specific. First, the person you see should have a great deal of experience in working with kid's behavior, be it in schools or private practice. There are many generalists out there who will work with really any population of clients and don't specialize with kids, but will put in their ad that they work with kids.

Ask specific questions about that experience. You are trying to resolve a problem for your child and it's o.k. to be detailed. Going to a person without experience with children's behavior for your child's behavior problem would be like going to an electrician to fix your plumbing. You wouldn't get very far.

The second question is also very important. As I mentioned earlier in this book, you aren't going to get anything by dropping your kid at the shrink's office for an hour and going shopping. You might catch up on your shopping, but the therapy results are probably not going to be what you want.

After all, you are the child's parent. Any therapist worth their weight is going to tell you that you need to learn to do these things at home. You are not looking for dependency on the relationship with the therapist. Rather you are looking for what to do so you can do it! You didn't seek out the therapist to become a pseudo Mom or Dad for the child. You sought out the therapist so that your child's behavior could improve and you could learn how to make that happen. Leaving the child at the therapist's office alone, might help the child's behavior in the office, but that's not really what we're after, is it? The long and the short of it is, if you are involved, you can learn what to use at home. The behavior will change much more quickly if parents are involved.

Some parents are worried about being involved, because they're embarrassed about the problems or they are so angry about the behavior or they're frankly sick and tired of dealing with it. To be honest with you, changing a child's bad behavior is tough and there is a struggle involved.

Some kids are tougher than others, but the alternative to not doing anything about it because you don't want to deal with it will most certainly bring even worse behavior later. I think it's better to get it done now and quickly rather than avoid it and wait until it really gets bad. It's like root canal. If you would have gone in when it was a cavity, it wouldn't have been half as painful or expensive as the root canal you need after waiting!

If the therapist says that he or she doesn't need you in the room at all for the therapy, I can't tell you directly what to do, but if it were me, I'd call some more therapists and find one who works with you as well!

The third question is one that depends on the situation. If your child is severely emotionally disturbed, you're probably looking at a longer therapy stay than if not. This is just common sense. Most kids I have seen in my office are not that way. Most of them are normal kids who are responding normally to what they want or to patterns in their family. In this situation, therapy doesn't have to take long. In fact, you can learn the principles in a few sessions and begin to use them yourself as you can see from this book.

From my observations there are two kinds of therapy for kids behavior. One kind is what I call solution-focused therapy in which you find out the problems and deal specifically with those problems in a focused way. Once that's done, therapy is over. This can be one session. The other kind of therapy is maintenance therapy. This is usually used in more of a coaching way.

Many single mothers will come for this kind of therapy, because it's basically like a back up for strength. It's having the point of view of someone who doesn't live in your house, regarding your kid's behavior. It's used when the parent feels too close to the situation and needs to pass the baton to someone who can be more objective and sort out the problem over time.

It's also used when the problem is tougher than normal and doesn't go away very easily. It's going over the rules, punishments and rewards. It's holding kids accountable for behavior on a maintenance basis until the parent feels comfortable.

Perennials worth crowing about

Hens and Chicks are fast growing, spreading, and long lived sempervivums that add fancy filigree to the garden. They resemble little cabbages all clumped together. My grandmother grew them.

Supposedly Hens and Chicks were planted around houses to keep away evil spirits. They were also said to repel lightning, prompting Charlemagne to decree more than 1,000 years ago that they may be planted on rooftops throughout his empire. They've been thought of as "good luck" plants. Their Latin name Sempervivum means "live forever." They are a true perennial.

There are hundreds of different sempervivums species, cultivars and varieties. They are as small as a dime and as large as big grapefruit. Some are covered with white hair, like a bearded old man, while others are smooth and shiny as satin. In spring they glow with dramatic color, their usual palette of greens shimmers shades of teal that shimmer like glass.

They are easy to grow. They fit into any garden whether grown in containers, rock gardens, or used as a garden border. Hens and Chicks in bloom are especially stunning.

Flowers are usually pink or red, and form on top an elongated stem that rises above a rosette. It takes several years for a Hen and Chick to bloom, and it dies after flowering. By then though, it has produced a dozen or so off shoots, the dying parent provides room and nutrients for the new plants.

Of all the Hens and Chicks spider webs (S. Arachnoideum) are probably the best known. Their name comes from the pale filaments that blanket the plants with a small fuzz. Some are covered with a fine downy pubescence while others are quite hairy!

To help these rapid spreaders colonize more rapidly, plant clumps about twice as far apart as they are wide. They generally triple in size in a single season.

Another popular plant is S. Tectorum, which is a European native. This is the variety my grandmother planted. It's plump leaves are medium green, with purplish or reddish tips. Also, S. Atlanticum is excellent for its lovely lime green hue.

Some Sempervivum cultivars developed recently are S. Gloriosum, it has a wonderful wine red color that lasts into the summer and has a good size. Another is S. Aymon Correuom, which has a grayish blue slate color.

Hens and Chicks will grow in any well drained soil. Full sun brings out the best spring color. They will grow in partial shade, but their color will be subdued.

Try them in your garden, they may bring you good luck. Hens and Chicks are worth crowing about!

BEHAVIOR: Guidelines to finding the right decision able doing it on their own.

Maintenance therapy is completely the choice of the parent in the situation of normal behavior problems. In other words, if a parent wants to stay longer and feels a need for that coaching, they can stay longer. Longer term therapy can be helpful, but many problems can be dealt with on a short-term basis if you find the right therapist.

I would recommend that if you are looking for a therapist and want a solution focused type of intervention, that you call and ask how long the therapist thinks it will take. Now, granted, no therapist can tell you "exactly 2.2 weeks" over the phone, but they should be able to give you an idea of what their program is like.

Another problem I run into all the time is patients who have previously been with another therapist whom they didn't like, but they felt bad about leaving the therapist, so they never stopped going there. There will be some good therapists and bad therapists. . . If you go a first time, there is not a contract saying you are limited to staying with that therapist. You need to find the person who will do the job for you. Go once, with the idea that you are researching who the best person is for the job. If you find someone you like and feel comfortable with, go forward.

I should also mention that since many times, kid's behavior can be a mirror of what's occurring in our own home, as an added extra, you might want your therapist to also be a "family oriented" therapist so that if the problem is related to other things in our families, you've got what you need in one person! HOROSCOPE

Aries - March 21/April 20
This week, it feels as if your get-up-and-go got up and went, Aries. With very little energy, you have no desire to take the lead. Don't get frustrated; just wait it out. You'll be back to your old self soon. A close friend is there to lift your spirits through this difficult time. Sagittarius plays an important role.

Taurus - April 21/May 21
Your strong, silent nature pays off this week. A superior at work feels that he or she can confide in you and tells you about future business plans. This confidence brings you into the "inner circle" and definitely will have positive results when it comes to a promotion. However, don't get too wrapped up in work; your family needs you this week.

Gemini - May 22/June 21
Change is not in the cards for you this week. Your tasks at work seem monotonous, and this makes you restless. Don't start looking for a new job just yet. Your superiors know how capable you are and are planning to put you on a new project. You bump into a friend you haven't seen in a long time; sparks will fly.

Cancer - June 22/July 22
You won't be crabby at all this week, Cancer. Everything goes your way at work. Co-workers come to you for advice, and superiors commend your efforts. As for family members, they all want to see you this week. Don't get overwhelmed.

You certainly can make the time to get together with all of them.

Leo - July 23/August 23
You're in control this week. Your insight solves a major problem at work, and your efforts are rewarded with an unexpected bonus. Your love life is on the upswing. Someone you've had your eye on for a long time finally makes a move. Don't be afraid to say yes. Scorpio and Pisces are involved.

Virgo - Aug 24/Sept 22
Your perfectionism gets in the way at work early in the week. Your efforts delay a project by a day or two. However, don't get too worried. While superiors are somewhat disappointed, there won't be any serious damage to your career. A loved one needs a shoulder to cry on. Be supportive.

Libra - Sept 23/Oct 23
Your good nature is tested early in the week. Everyone from co-workers to family members is trying your patience. Remain calm; getting upset only will make matters worse. You meet an interesting person near the end of the week. Be cautious, but try to get to know him or her better.

Scorpio - Oct 24/Nov 22
Don't try to be someone you're not at work this week. You know your limitations; stick to them. You'll get more rewards by doing your job well than by doing someone else's tasks poorly. Your family is there for you when a long-term relationship hits a snag. Don't keep your feelings bottled up.

Sagittarius - Nov 23/Dec 21
It seems that you're always sticking your foot in your mouth this week. Don't get too embarrassed; just try to explain what you really mean. Work won't present any problems. Loved ones, on the other hand, will have you on the verge of tears. Don't get disheartened; they're only trying to help you make good decisions.

Capricorn - Dec 22/Jan 20
While many people will be vying for your attention at work this week, don't get distracted. Keep your mind on the task at hand, and you will succeed. A friend of a friend asks you out. You've only seen him or her a few times, but don't be afraid. Go out on a date. Aquarius plays an important role.

Aquarius - Jan 21/Feb 18
You feel that you're in over your head at work early in the week. While it's disconcerting, you still must give 100 percent of yourself to your job. A little determination will go a long way. A loved one comes to you for advice. Be objective; don't let your feelings get in the way of helping him or her.

Pisces - Feb 19/March 20
You help out a co-worker who seems to be floundering in his or her job responsibilities. Not only will he or she appreciate your assistance, but higher-ups also will notice your efforts and keep you in mind when a promotion is available. It's your time to shine.

Jesse Oaks owned and operated by Skip Smith for the last year.

It's also the place for an invigorating game of volleyball on its sand courts, or a fast horseshoe contest. The outdoor beer garden is a beautiful and busy place in nice weather.

Relieving big headaches

Did you know that 90 percent of Americans have at least one headache yearly that causes them to miss work or social activities?

What are headaches? "Most headaches are caused by chemical reactions in the brain affected by diet, emotion, medication, and hormonal changes," says Dr. William E. Baubie, an emergency physician in Kingston, NY. These reactions cause muscle contractions which lead to head or neck pain otherwise known as a tension headache. Migraine headaches are usually described as one-sided, throbbing, and may cause nausea and/or sensitivity to light and sound.

Avoiding headache 'triggers': "The best way to control recurrent headaches is to keep a diary of when and how they occur," says Dr. Baubie. Common triggers include bright light, stress, foods, noise, smoke, menstrual cycles, bad posture, sleep abnormalities, skipping meals, grinding teeth, and gum chewing. To help identify possible food triggers, Dr. Baubie suggests avoiding aged cheeses, alcohol, caffeine, salt, cured meats, chocolate, ice cream, nuts, and food additives for two months to see if headaches stop or decrease. "It is important to remember that the things that trigger headaches differ from person to person."

Headache remedies: Most sudden headaches can be relieved with ice packs, massage, sleep, and pain medications. "Overuse of pain relievers or a change in the duration or severity of your headaches should prompt a visit to your doctor," suggests Dr. Baubie. "Rebound headaches" can be caused by sudden withdrawal of caffeine or pain medication. "Hangover headaches" can be prevented by drinking alcohol slowly and moderately on a full stomach.

New technique relieves carpal tunnel

A new procedure to relieve carpal tunnel syndrome requires only a local anesthetic injected in the wrist, takes minutes to perform and enables a patient's quick return to work, according to physicians at West Suburban Hospital Medical Center in Oak Park.

"The patient does not even require a splint or cast after the surgery. The wrist can be moved immediately," said Dr. Manutchehr Sohaey, director of plastic and reconstructive surgery at West Suburban, which is a subsidiary of the Loyola Univ. Health System.

The traditional approach, known as the open carpal tunnel release, requires the surgeon to slice through the skin and tissues at the base of the palm and in the wrist in order to reach, divide and cut the carpal ligament and relieve pressure on the median nerve. The median nerve runs the length of the arm and conducts sensation from the fingers and hand to the central nervous system.

"With the improved technique, we make only a small incision—about three-quarters of an inch—in the palm. Then, using tools especially made for this procedure, we are able to protect the median nerve and move away tendons and tissues above and below the carpal ligament underneath the skin before cutting the ligament," Sohaey explained.

"The approach is simple, safe and effective. It minimizes destruction of tissue, preserves the arch of the hand and significantly reduces the risk of damage to the nerve," he added.

The technique is even safer, and more cost-effective, than endoscopic surgery, Sohaey said.

"The endoscope provides limited vision of the area in which the surgeon is working and requires the surgeon to make sometimes two incisions in the patient's hand. Endoscopic surgery is also much more expensive than the new technique," he stated.

Carpal tunnel syndrome occurs when too much pressure is placed on the median nerve, which passes through a narrow tunnel consisting of tendon and nerves in the wrist. Symptoms include a tingling sensation in the fingers and hand, numbness and pain that grows progressively worse.

The condition often occurs in persons whose hobbies or work responsibilities require repetitive motions of the hand and wrist over long periods of time. These repetitive motions cause thickening of the tissues surrounding the tendons in the wrist. As the tissues thicken, they compress the nerve in the carpal tunnel.

Women are more susceptible to developing the syndrome than men because their carpal tunnels tend to be smaller.

A wrist splint and medications are the first options for treating the condition. If these measures fail, however, surgery may be necessary.

Surgery involves cutting the ligament that crosses over the carpal tunnel in the wrist in order to open up the tunnel and relieve pressure on the nerve.

Sohaey said the new surgical procedure takes only several minutes to perform and, unlike the traditional approaches, does not require use of general anesthesia in an operating room.

"My patients can return to their normal routines within a few days. One patient went back to work two days after undergoing this technique," Sohaey said.

The new technique, called minimally open carpal tunnel release or the Indiana carpal tunnel tome, was developed by Dr. James Strickland of the Indiana Univ. School of Medicine.

West Suburban Hospital Medical Center and Loyola Univ. Medical Center in Maywood affiliated last year to create the new Loyola Univ. Health System.

GSH hosts cancer survivors celebration

Good Shepherd Hospital, Barrington, will host its 10th annual National Cancer Survivors Day celebration at 1 p.m. Sunday, June 1 at the hospital. The celebration will feature keynote speaker Greg Risbert, MSW, who will present an inspiring talk called "Humor, Hugs and Hope."

Risbert is a social worker and educator from Chicago. He earned his master's degree in social work from the Univ. of Illinois and is the author of "Touch: A Personal Workbook." Prior to developing his consulting practice and embarking on a speaking career, Risbert was a lecturer at Northwestern Univ. Hospital and at Loyola Medical Center in Chicago.

People who experience Risbert's upbeat presentation will learn how to share laughter with others, see more humor in their life, learn the seven basic hugs, strengthen their sense of hope, lower their stress level and raise their energy level.

Cancer Survivors Day is a nationwide celebration of life that commemorates the many personal victories over cancer. The central theme is to unite survivors from coast-to-coast in a symbolic event honoring cancer survivors.

"The day is a celebration of life to demonstrate to all Americans that people do survive cancer," said Ann Rychlik, Good Shepherd's director of medical/surgical nursing. "It is an opportunity for cancer survivors to share joy in victories against cancer and give hope to these who are still fighting the disease. It also is designed to promote awareness of the progress that is being made in fighting this battle," Rychlik added.

Hopeful trends in cancer survival offer good reasons to celebrate. The American Cancer Society reports that over 10 million Americans alive today have a history of cancer, seven million diagnosed five or more years ago.

Most of these seven million can be considered cured, meaning they have no evidence of disease and have the small life expectancy as a person who never had cancer. Today, about four out of 10 people survive cancer, compared with one out three in the 1960s.

Regular screenings and self exams can detect cancers of the breast, tongue, mouth, colon, rectum, cervix, prostate, testis and melanoma at an early stage, when treatment is more likely to be successful. With early detection, the survival rate increases to about 92 percent.

Good Shepherd's cancer program has been recognized by the American College of Surgeons' commission on Cancer as being among the best in the country.

The hospital incorporates a full range of inpatient and outpatient oncology services, trained personnel, support groups and education programs in the treatment of cancer.

The hospital's state-of-the-art services include needlecore breast biopsy; a step-down unit that affords complex surgical oncology patients a level of care between intensive care and the general medical/surgical unit; a comprehensive Oncology Care Registry; and a Humor Room, inspired by research on the positive effect of humor in cancer therapy.

Cancer patients and survivors who have been treated at Good Shepherd Hospital are invited to attend the celebration with a guest.

For more information or to make reservations, call 1(800)323-8622.

Florence Foster of Jackson, Mich. shows off her plastic walking cane she invented at the age of 93.

Michigan woman 93 invents new walking cane

Thirty years after her retirement, Florence Foster, of Jackson, Michigan, has taken a firm grip on the business world, with her invention of a new and cheerful plastic walking cane.

While she was planning a hiking trip into the Arizona mountains, for more of her prize winning photos, Foster realized that she needed a stronger cane for more stability. So she designed one, which even had colorful flowers inside too, as she put it "replace that dreadful looking hospital cane that made me look old."

Then, she went to the big Plastigage Corp. plant in Jackson and asked them to make her a cane. Everett Scott, their superintendent, admired her enterprise. So, he located just the right tube, designed a strong clear plastic handle, and put a wide rubber tip on it to grip the ground. Foster added colorful roses inside, and was off to Arizona.

Passing through airports and on the planes people asked her where they could get a cane like hers. So, when she got home, she asked Plastigage to make her a dozen more to sell to friends and neighbors.

Douglas Finch, the Plastigage president, was so impressed that he promised to make her as many as she wanted!

Foster tells everyone she meets about her canes. The response to this "Senior Super Saleswoman" has been so great that Plastigage even offered her the use of their own toll-free number to handle inquiries and orders. So, anyone can call 1(888)768-9280 or 1(888)547-6240 for information. She will even consider a few dealers.

Her canes are 35, 34, and 33 inches, and can easily be cut shorter, by removing the tip.

When asked why she wanted roses inside, Foster said: "Women like roses the best. When a husband wants to make his wife smile, he doesn't bring dandelions, he brings roses! And, for their own use, men can replace the roses with fishing lures, shotgun shells, or other sport things.

Some of her customers told Foster about taking nasty spills, when not using their hospital cane that made them look old and infirm. But, they used Foster's cane all the time, because it looked so cheerful, and people they met seemed to begin treating them differently.

Foster plans to make her canes available to children, with little dolls or toys inside. She feels that an interesting cane could keep other children from teasing them, when they have to use a cane.

When Foster was told that a bunch of her fans were going to make her "world famous," she told them that wasn't necessary, and then added, with a twinkle in her eye, "but, if you want me to read about it, you had better get going, because I'm 93, you know!"

Foster says that her cheerful looking canes may prompt folks to use a cane earlier, when they first need one. "But," she added, "even if my experience just inspires older people to get going after their dreams, as I did, that will be reward enough for me."

Hospital offers alternative to home alone

Highland Park Hospital's Alternative Day Service offers a stimulating day program for seniors who can benefit from a supportive setting and who might otherwise have a lonely day at home.

Each day includes structured, therapeutic activities, including current events, art and music therapies, and exercise.

The professional staff includes a gerontologist, certified art therapist, music-recreational therapist, and two certified nursing assistants. The ratio of staff-to-participants is one to five with a registered nurse on duty every day.

There is also a unique drop-in respite service, which provides caregivers an opportunity to take care of themselves. The drop-in service is available Mondays through Fridays, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Half-day options are also available.

Pre-registration is required for both the weekly and drop-in programs. Adult Day Service is located at Highland Park Hospital's Green Bay Pavilion at 1936 Green Bay Rd. For further information, call Sharon Anderson, RN, at 480-3899.

Daybreak seeks volunteers

Daybreak is in need of volunteers this summer. Daybreak is a social activity program for people in the early to middle stages of Alzheimer's disease or related memory disorder. Volunteers need only a few hours to consider becoming an activity aide, office assistant, driver or errand runner.

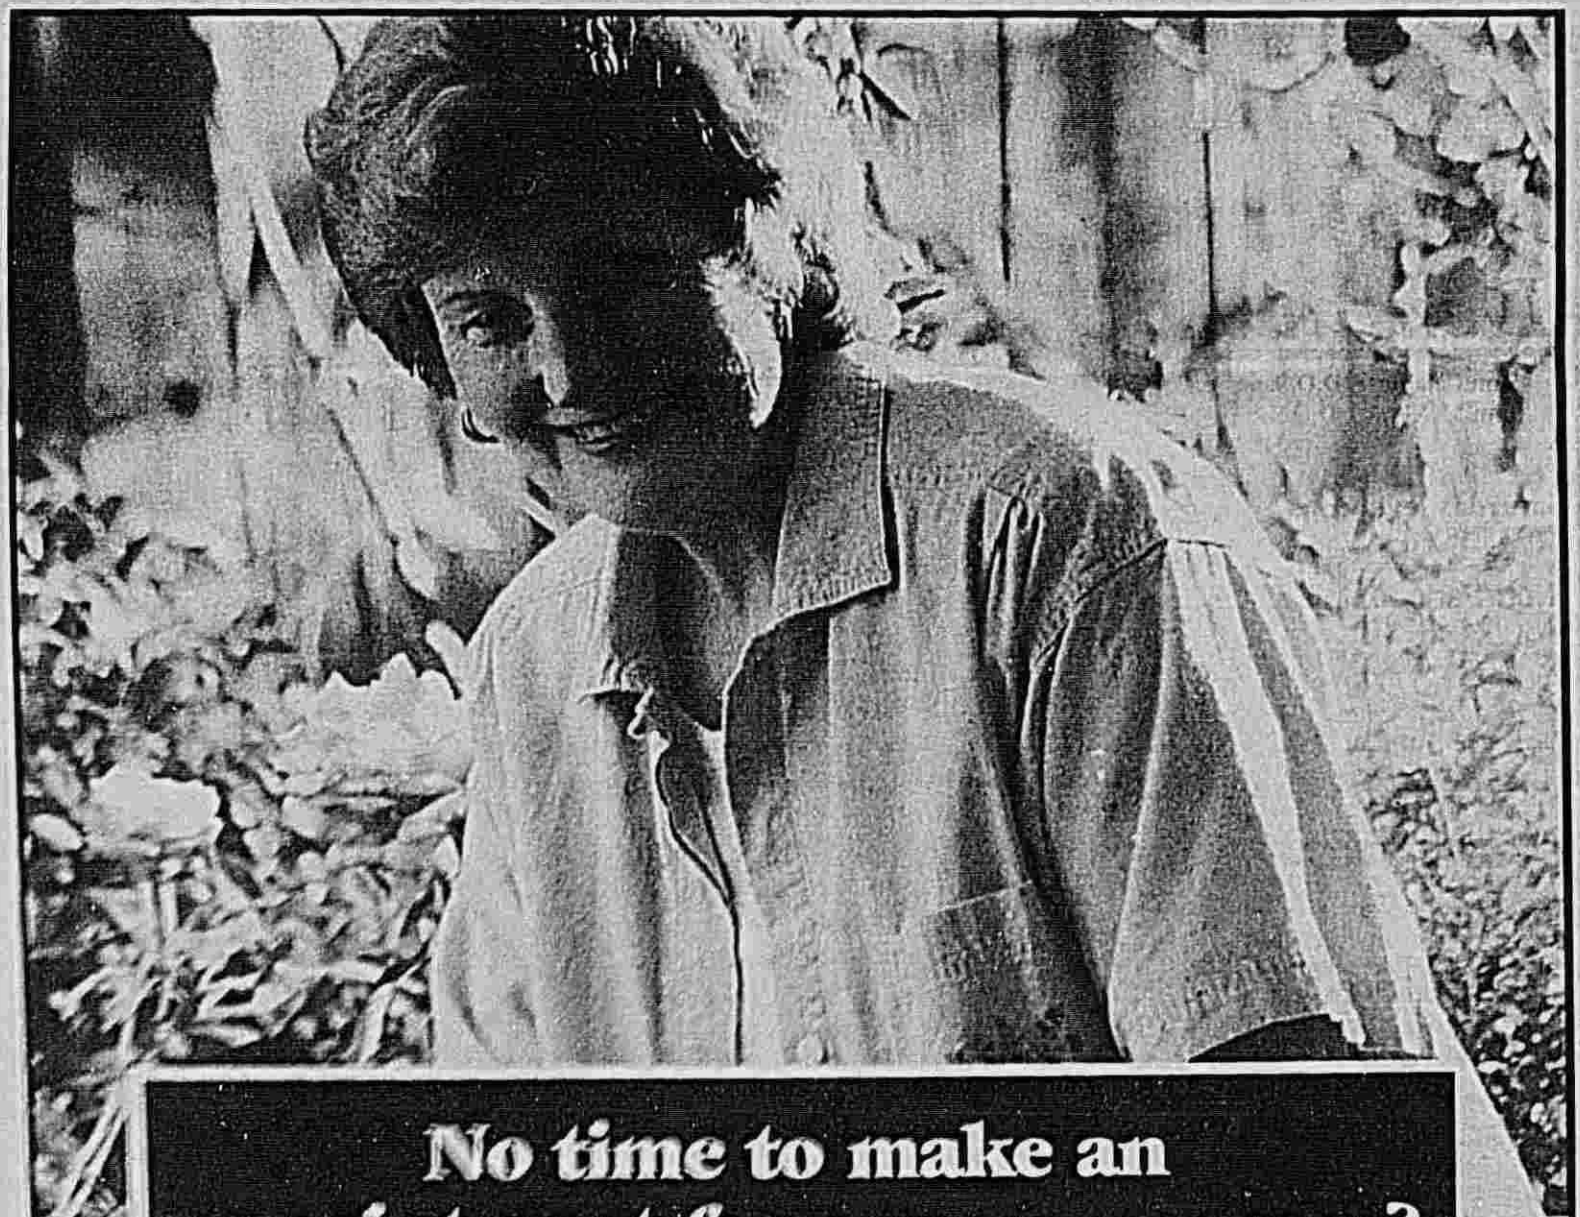

All volunteers receive training in working with individuals with Alzheimer's disease and ongoing support. Daybreak is held every Tuesday, Friday and second Saturday of the month from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Westosha Community Center on Hwy. C in Bristol, Wis. For information, call (414)653-6646.

Condell's Health Careers program presents scholarships

Eleven outstanding local students received 1997 Scholarship Awards during the annual Health Careers Program Capping and Graduation Ceremony held by the Auxiliary of Condell Medical Center, the program's sponsor. The scholarships, totaling $13,000, were awarded by Condell Medical Center, its auxiliary, and the medical staff.

Shaun Kurien, a Libertyville High School student, received a $2,000 Condell Medical Center scholarship. He was also vice president of the organization. Other Libertyville High School students who were awarded Condell scholarships were Lowell Chang of Green Oaks, $1,500; Laura Chong of Libertyville, $500; and Grace Lee, of Green Oaks, $500. Rebecca Hoffman, a Stevenson High School student from Vernon Hills also was awarded $500.

Vanessa DeTerlizzi and Joyce Wang, both Libertyville High School students from Libertyville, each received a $2,000 scholarship presented by The Auxiliary of Condell Medical Center. DeTerlizzi served as secretary of the group. Sarah Czamota, a Stevenson High School student from Long Grove, was awarded the Auxiliary's $1,000 scholarship. Wang, who was Penwasciz president, also received the $500 Dr. Jack Bellis Scholarship.

Stevenson High School students, Anna Bjorklund and Daila Dhlngira, both of Vernon Hills, each received a $1,250 Gift of Appreciation Scholarship from the Condell medical staff.

The officers for 1997 were also presented. They are Joyce Lee of Libertyville, president; Chris Adams of Mundelein, vice president; and Lindsey Hein of Libertyville, secretary.

The Health Careers Program, officially named the Penwasciz, has been sponsored by the Condell Auxiliary for 42 years. It is a unique educational program providing opportunities for high school students to learn first-hand about health careers. It is the only organized intern program in the country which offers training, tests and graduation. No warnings

I want to know what happened to Fox Lake's tornado siren. They had it on the television that a tornado was heading toward Fox Lake. The siren in Grayslake, Round Lake and Antioch went off, but there was nothing in Fox Lake to warn people to take cover.

Fox Lake

Get after 'em

I'm calling regarding the Libertyville ticket that you have to have for your car as a resident. It costs $5 and if you're late, there's an additional $20 penalty. We have 20,000 people and they've sold 10,000. There's 10,000 people that haven't bought stickers. I wonder why they feel they can charge the people who come in to buy a sticker a $20 penalty when they don't go after the people who haven't purchased a sticker. Everything is on the computer. This really is an aggravation. I have to pay a penalty because I was out of the area at the time.

To the moon!

I'd like to make a comment on the Russian space station, Mir. I think we're wasting an awful lot of money to send people up there to ride around the world for who knows how long. I think we should end that and start planning on having moon stations. I think it would be more exciting to have people explore the moon.

Never again

On St. Patrick's Day I followed a drunk driver. I turned him in like I thought I should before he killed somebody, either your child or mine. Now I'm being harassed by this drunk and his girlfriend is running around all over trying to get him off. His father works for the village and he's doing his best to get him off and I'm being made to look like a real jerk for turning him in. I don't know what the world's coming to. I thought I was doing the world a favor by turning this guy in before he killed somebody and now I'm looking like the bad guy. I've been told I should have minded my own business and I'm getting phone calls at night. At this point, I'm thinking about not helping anyone anymore. Let's just pray he doesn't kill our kids.

Is he a 'homer'?

I'm calling in regard to Steve Peterson's sports section. Why is he always writing articles about Warren High School? Doesn't he realize this is a Grayslake paper and we'd like to read about Grayslake High School? Did he go to Warren?

Editor's Note: The sports page that appears in the Grayslake Times also appears in the Wadsworth News and Gurnee Press.

Work on traffic

You can't realistically stop development in highly popular places like Lake County. You can, however, direct transportation. That Antioch, Lake Villa and other villages pushed for and got commuter rail service shows their good planning. They'll have a chance to use this service instead of multi-lane highways, saving the taxpayers money.

They wouldn't...?

Whoa, Grayslake board, not so fast. Before you get ahead of yourselves, ask the townspeople in referendum if they want to pay $25 million for a fitness center, pool and gym in a community center. Adults can join a fitness club and help keep our taxes from skyrocketing further. The schools can build a pool cheaper that we all can use. We don't want to hear any more of this baloney of us getting this monstrosity FREE, FREE, FREE. The reverberations from not asking the citizens of this great town their final opinion on building will be felt for years to come. Grayslake would not build without first asking us, would they?

Not AF business

I'd like to make a comment on Lt. Kelly Flinn's problem with the Air Force. I think it's utterly ridiculous to want to dishonorably discharge a lady because she had committed adultery and lied. Adultery goes on all over. They should change it that you are not discharged for this. It's morally wrong, but not to the point where it ruins someone's career.

Young town now

Well, seniors, it looks like we'll have to move out of Wauconda. Between the village, the park district and school district, we won't be able to afford our home with all the taxes we'll have to pay. It looks like it will be a young community. This was a nice town until the younger generation moved in and took over.

Exit problems

I'd like to make a suggestion about the Lake Zurich movie theater parking lot. It's really difficult to get out of there. It would be nice to make it easier so you won't have to go into Wal-Mart to exit.

Thanks, thanks, thanks

Lindenhurst, Lake Villa, a big thank you to all our friends who donated huggable bears to the rescue squad. They give the children the bears when they're transporting them to the hospital. Thank you, we've had more than 100 bears donated. We want to thank everyone who rallied to our call. You did a great job!

Out of touch

This is in response to "Reality check." "Reality check" is living in a fantasy world. I am a teacher and I do not work six hours a day. I'm required to be there for eight hours, but I usually put in nine. I put in two hours of work at home each night, meaning I have a 55-60 hour work week, much more than you do. As far as your salary, I'm sorry you chose a job that only pays you $22,000. How much education do you have? I have a college degree, a masters degree, and nine years teaching experience. I deserve the money I get.

Round Lake Beach

Yeah, right

I just read the article on Lexington Homes being named builder of the year. Someone ought to check out Silver Oaks out here.

Let them be kids

I have to disagree with "Reality check" who thinks that our children shouldn't have summer vacation. I, too, come from a family where there's two working people and have two children myself. I think the children need to be children. Nowadays we push them into too many things. Let them have their vacation and time off and let them be kids while they can. They'll be swallowed up by reality soon enough.

Where's priorities?

I live in Fox Lake and am a taxpayer here. Ron Hoehne is the Superintendent of Streets and I wonder why he's hired landscapers to dig around trees and put down mulch when the streets need repairing. He should go around and see how many dips and bumps there are in the roads.

Make good decisions

I'm calling about the train. I have to agree that the whistle is blown way too early. The whistle is blown sooner now. If you are a person who buys a home after you know a track is there and you stand there on your lot and listen and see the train, then you can decide whether you want to live there or not. It's not the train's fault. If the train was there first, then move and get out.

Don't let the media derail your financial plan

Here's some unusual advice to read in a newspaper financial column: Don't get your investment advice from newspaper financial columns. Or from the media in general. Even well-known financial journalists caution against it.

Newsweek magazine's personal finance columnist, Jane Bryant Quinn, wrote that most financial articles "tickle our prudent financial interest" rather than give sound advice. In other words, news reports feature the very good, the very bad and the very immediate (after all, that's what makes it news). Making decisions based solely on these stories can derail an investor's plans.

The key to successful investing is to establish a good, solid, long-term plan and stick to it. That means ignoring sensational headlines that may urge you to buy or sell. After all, most financial professionals wouldn't consider making an investment decision without financial data from the past five to 20 years, much less basing a decision on a few days' headlines. And even if the numbers from that long-term data look good, there are other things to consider, such as your needs, objectives and risk tolerance. So while it's fine to consult, for example, those weekly or annual mutual fund rankings that are so popular, it's probably not a good idea to buy into an investment based solely on some magazine's top 10 list.

Demand for financial information has never been higher. While the World War II generation relied on company pension plans and savings accounts for retirement, baby boomers look to their IRAs or 401(k) plans for retirement income. They invest rather than save, and they want plenty of information on hand that explains how to do it.

Unfortunately, much of the advice comes from inexperienced, rushed reporters or self-proclaimed financial wizards selling subscriptions, books and manuals for hundreds of dollars through direct mail.

One TV talk show featured a mutual fund portfolio manager. This manager's fund was performing in a less-than-spectacular fashion. It had a history of double-digit losses. Its sales load was 8 percent. The fund's annual expense ratio was more than 7 percent (down from 25 percent). What little money the fund made was eaten up by expenses and sales charges.

With a straight face and the usual disclaimer, the manager highly recommended his fund to aggressive investors. Unfortunately, there were probably some folks who took him up on his offer, proving that basing your investment decisions on unchecked media information can be hazardous to your financial health. There is a mountain of financial information provided, much of it (like this column, for instance) can be helpful, but treat it all as supplemental. See a professional investment representative from a reputable firm for solid advice that will help when it counts—in the long run.

Whither Lake County: Balancing growth with preservation

By RHONDA HETRICK BURKE
Editor in Chief

How do we protect the quality of life in Lake County while growth continues to be a reality?

This is the question the Lake County Planning, Building and Zoning Committee under the chairmanship of Pam Newton (Dist. 18: Vernon Hills) is attempting to answer as they work toward completion of the county's new unified development ordinance and updating the framework plan.

The Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission's latest population forecast figures indicate the population of Lake County will swell to 806,194 by the year 2010. By contrast, the 1990 census showed 516,401 calling Lake County home.

"How do we choose between estate-living and urban centers that foster transportation advantages and affordable housing?" Newton said. "We have to do it by changing the zoning laws. If we don't tell developers what we want, how will they know?"

The cornerstone of the Lake County Unified Development Ordinance may be its emphasis on conservation development, a concept pioneered by Randall Arendt in "Rural by Design" published by the American Planning Association. The UDO is due for public hearings this summer.

Under this concept, builders are encouraged to preserve as much open space as possible on a parcel and cluster homes together to provide community open space. It varies from the more traditional approach of building homes on 1-5 acre estate tracts to achieve open space. It also generally helps facilitate traffic patterns and the use of public transportation because residents are clustered together.

"We are looking to promote open space development through this new ordinance," Newton said. "We are trying to avoid postage stamp development in the future. We are convinced that it is not too late to change the way development is done in Lake County."

The committee believes four major areas must be preserved under details of the ordinance. They include:

- Native prairies
- Wetlands
- Woodlands
- Agriculture lands

"Preserving agricultural lands is a new concept in land preservation terms," Newton said. "But it is part of our heritage and it's important it is not lost as we develop."

"We are trying to develop a restrictive ordinance and learn lessons not only from our past but from the influences on the collar county region as well," Newton said.

"We can't stop development, but we can control the effects of it by

Prairie Crossing profits while preserving open space

By RHONDA HETRICK BURKE
Editor in Chief

Two people who knew they couldn't stop housing growth set out to prove builders could develop subdivisions while preserving open space and still turn a profit.

The work of George and Victoria Ranney and their Prairie Crossing subdivision in Grayslake has received national recognition. And while other Lake County developers may not be flocking to their doorstep to learn just how they have done it—developers from the Chicago collar counties and throughout the country are coming and learning.

"We were told when we started five years ago, we would never make a go of it," Victoria Ranney said. "We were told the only way to save open space was to build a golf course community. That is not what we wanted."

Ranney said the project's first obstacle was in getting financial support from banks.

"Bankers want you to come in with your financial advisors and show how you can make a profit. They want comparables from other developments, like the one you propose within three miles of your development and built within three years," Ranney said. "We couldn't show them what they wanted, because it had never been done. We had to sell them on the concept."

Today, Prairie Crossing is fast becoming a reality. More than 90 homes have been sold. When complete, the community will have just 317 single-family homes on 667 acres of gently rolling countryside. More than 350 acres of the development is devoted to prairies, pastures, farm fields, gardens, marshes and lakes. While homes are built on 1/4 to 1/2 acre lots, each lot backs-up to open space and bike trails and walking paths connect the clusters of homes to the larger areas of open space.

"One thing we are trying to do is to save space for agriculture," Ranney said. "We have two young farmers working at Prairie Crossing with the community supported garden and raising vegetables, fruits and flowers for more than 100 families. With the high price of land today, there are not many places where young farmers can still farm in Lake County."

Each property owner at Prairie Crossing receives a basket of fresh fruits, vegetables and flowers weekly during the growing season as part of their $400 yearly shares into the community garden. Residents also share their food together during potluck dinners at the restored barn or old farm house.

"It is a wonderful site to see the residents come to the farm area to pick-up their fruits and vegetables," said Ranney. "We are really trying to build a sense of community."

Prairie Crossing was founded on the principles of conserving the environment and building a community. Prospective homeowners are introduced to these principles in the sales office:

- Environmental protection and enhancement
- A healthy lifestyle
- A sense of place
- A sense of community
- Economic and racial diversity
- Convenient and efficient transportation
- Energy conservation
- Lifelong learning and education
- Aesthetic design and high-

CLC Foundation elects Bartels president

Charles Bartels, owner of Manpower (Vernon Hills), has been elected President of the College of Lake County Foundation board for the 1998 fiscal year. He will be joined by John Schaper, general agent, American United Life Insurance Co. in Libertyville, as first vice president/president-elect; and Don Wasson of Waukegan as secretary.

Bartels

The Foundation board also elected vice presidents for finance, membership, cultural arts, fund raising and scholarship committees. They are Tim Klein (finance), a partner with Pasquesi Sheppard LLC of Lake Forest, assisted by John Freese of Baird & Warner Realtors in Gurnee; Tom Schwartz (membership), president and CEO of the First Midwest Bank, N.A. in Waukegan, assisted by Barry Markl, regional vice president of store operation, Walgreens Co. in Deerfield; and Marjorie Martin (cultural arts) of Ivanhoe.

The fund raising committee will be directed by two vice presidents—Bob Schachner, an investment representative with Edward Jones Investments in Libertyville and John Schaper. They will be assisted by Joe Massarelli, general manager of Liberty Auto Center in Libertyville. Robert Worobow, vice president of human resources at Trustmark Insurance Co. in Lake Forest, will serve as scholarships/grants committee vice president, and he will be assisted by Emmett Moore, senior division director, corporate information systems at Allstate Insurance Co. in Northbrook.

The CLC Foundation provides resources for projects that are not funded through the college's regular operating budget. Funds raised through donations, grants and benefit events are used to fund student scholarships, support faculty and staff projects, promote cultural arts and support facility development.

WHITHER: Finding solutions

working within the framework of the law," Newton said. "We have consulted with the state's attorney's office to see how far we can go in adding restrictive language. In the past it has been interpreted that there is not much leeway. The committee has challenged that. We want to know how far we can go in saying no, while still respecting the law."

Among the initiatives the planning, building and zoning committee are looking at are:

- Creating a guidebook for natural resource protection that would be given to all prospective developers seeking zoning from the county and setting up a future vision roundtable. These initiatives are in the three to six-month planning stage.

- Examining state statutes related to impact fees for schools and other public taxing bodies, developing rural design standards and putting into writing regional impact considerations and developer requirements. These initiatives are in the six to 12-month planning stage.

"Impact fees are very frustrating at the county level," said Newton. "It is amazing how much less authority the county has to impose impact fees than a municipality. We have to find ways to change state statutes to allow the county to collect greater impact fees."

Perhaps the biggest key to developing smarter for the future, however, remains the need for a public/private partnership.

"The county and municipalities have to work together with landowners, environmental groups and developers to bring positive change to Lake County development," Newton said. "The county should always be a work in progress."

The new unified development ordinance has critics, however. Most of the criticism is centered on why it has taken the county so long to develop the ordinance—it has been in the works for more than 18 months—and why the concepts were not embraced earlier.

"Reality has hit a lot of people. Time is running out for land preservation," Newton said. "We now know that if we don't change the philosophy of land use drastically and dramatically, there won't be any land left to protect. Our intent is to plan for the best community possible in Lake County."

Northpointe Achievement Center to accept $1 million donation

Northpointe Achievement Center (NAC) in Zion, which assists individuals with disabilities to be more independent in work and living, has received a $1 million bequest from the estate of Blanche E. Killian, a longtime Waukegan resident, who died in 1996. Killian worked at Abbott Laboratories in North Chicago for 46 years.

Killian's gift, the largest received by NAC since its founding in 1953, will be used for capital improvements and development. NAC named its production floor in memory of Blanche Killian at a dedication ceremony.

"Several years ago, Blanche visited NAC as a prospective volunteer," said Arlene Demb, NAC's director of development. "After a tour, she realized she would become too emotionally attached to be an effective volunteer. She still deeply wanted to do something for our clients, as her extraordinary gift shows. People like Blanche make it possible for us to provide the best services possible for our clients. She was an amazing woman with a heart of gold. NAC will always remember her for her dedication and generosity."

NAC provides services to eligible persons who, because of their disability, need additional training in work experience, job-seeking skills, social skills, independent living skills, or integrated living experience. NAC provides services and employees for numerous businesses throughout Lake County.

PRAIRIE: Building a community

quality construction

- Economic viability

Sunny Sonnenshien, who wrote her doctoral thesis on growth in Lake County, thought she had seen it all until she visited Prairie Crossing on its opening day of sales.

"I didn't want to move," Sonnenshien said. "In researching my thesis I had visited every new subdivision within a 50-mile radius. Prairie Crossing was so different from anything else. It was obviously designed by people who cared about open space and protecting it." Before the day was out, Sonnenshien had written a check for a down payment. She has been a resident for two years.

"It's an amazing place to live," she said. "So many aspects have turned out to be successful. The community supported garden does what it's supposed to do; it brings people together and it shows them a connection to where their food comes from."

Environmental team leader Michael Sands, says Prairie Crossing teaches people in Lake County "that you can keep agriculture alive."

Sands, who works and lives at Prairie Crossings, teaches homeowners the connection between taking care of the environment in their own backyard and the region.

"My goal is to take these residents and use their decision to buy a home at Prairie Crossing to connect them to the larger environment around them and make them an advocate for it," Sands said. "We do this through recycling programs (each kitchen has a recycling bin as part of the standard floor plan), reducing lawn fertilizers and the planting of native species around their lots and abutting their lots."

Sands says the bottom-line why people buy homes at Prairie Crossing is for the quality of home construction.

"They come back to the sales office because the homes are well-constructed, affordable to them and because they like the concept of the development," Sands said. "What is amazing to me is how many people since moving into Prairie Crossing have become advocates for the environment and have gotten involved with political issues on the local, state and national level."

"We have proven that physically you can do a development differently," said Ranney. "Good development will create a community with community stewardship."

Ranney smiles at the fact that the development's sales rate is on par with others in the area.

"We've been able to realize a dream and still make a profit. Others can do this if they are willing to put forth the effort," she added.

Kabbes may consult at Waterway

Fox Lake—It may not be good-bye after all. Although the Fox Waterway Agency will be accepting the resignation of Executive Director Karen Kabbes, it may retain her services as a consultant.

The idea was formally proposed by Director Stan Mill at the Agency's May 22 meeting. Mill proposed that she be hired "until dredging regulations have been changed by variance and the Geo-Tubes project has been started."

Chairman Dr. William Dam enthusiastically endorsed the idea.

"If I can be of help, I'm more than happy to work with them," Kabbes said, adding that she had "unique talent and experience" to offer the Agency if hired in a consulting role.

Priest celebrates 25 years

Lake Zurich—Father Ron Gollatz of St. Francis de Sales Catholic Church celebrated his 25th anniversary in the ministry last week.

Children attending St. Francis de Sales School surprised Gollatz with a gift of a new chalice to use in masses. His old chalice was smashed a couple years ago. They also contributed change from their pockets.

Gollatz, 51, a priest at St. Francis for the past five years, has served seven parishes in Lake and Cook County, and is looking to remain at St. Francis for a second six-year term once his first term ends next year.

Society keeps past alive

Wauconda—The 25th year of the Wauconda Township Historical Society is being celebrated this year.

As happens every spring, the society is holding its annual Open House Sunday, June 1, from 1 to 4 p.m., at the Andrew C. Cook House and Museum, 711 N. Main St. The house remains pretty much as it was when Cook, one of Wauconda's first residents, lived there.

The museum will remain open every Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m. throughout the summer and early fall.

Organization fights for charter

Round Lake—The Round Lake Lakes Management organization is fighting to get its charter back.

A paperwork problem has caused the organization to lose its non-profit charter, according to Robert Messineo, president.

The current board of the organization is seeking community support and volunteers to continue its mission of protecting the lake, working towards lake safety and cleaning the lake.

The former board members are going to continue as an informal group. They won't have any meeting date. However, they will work behind the scenes with village and county officials, according to John Huebner, former president.

Village seeks new census

Lake Villa—Village officials have decided to undertake a special census so the village can receive added state tax money.

Village officials expect the census to show 700 more residents than the 1990 census. That number would translate into $55,000 in additional revenue for village projects.

The number is based on the village receiving $85 per resident in additional state tax money which is formulated on the number of residents.

The census is expected to begin June 9 and take about two weeks to complete.

Playground project begins

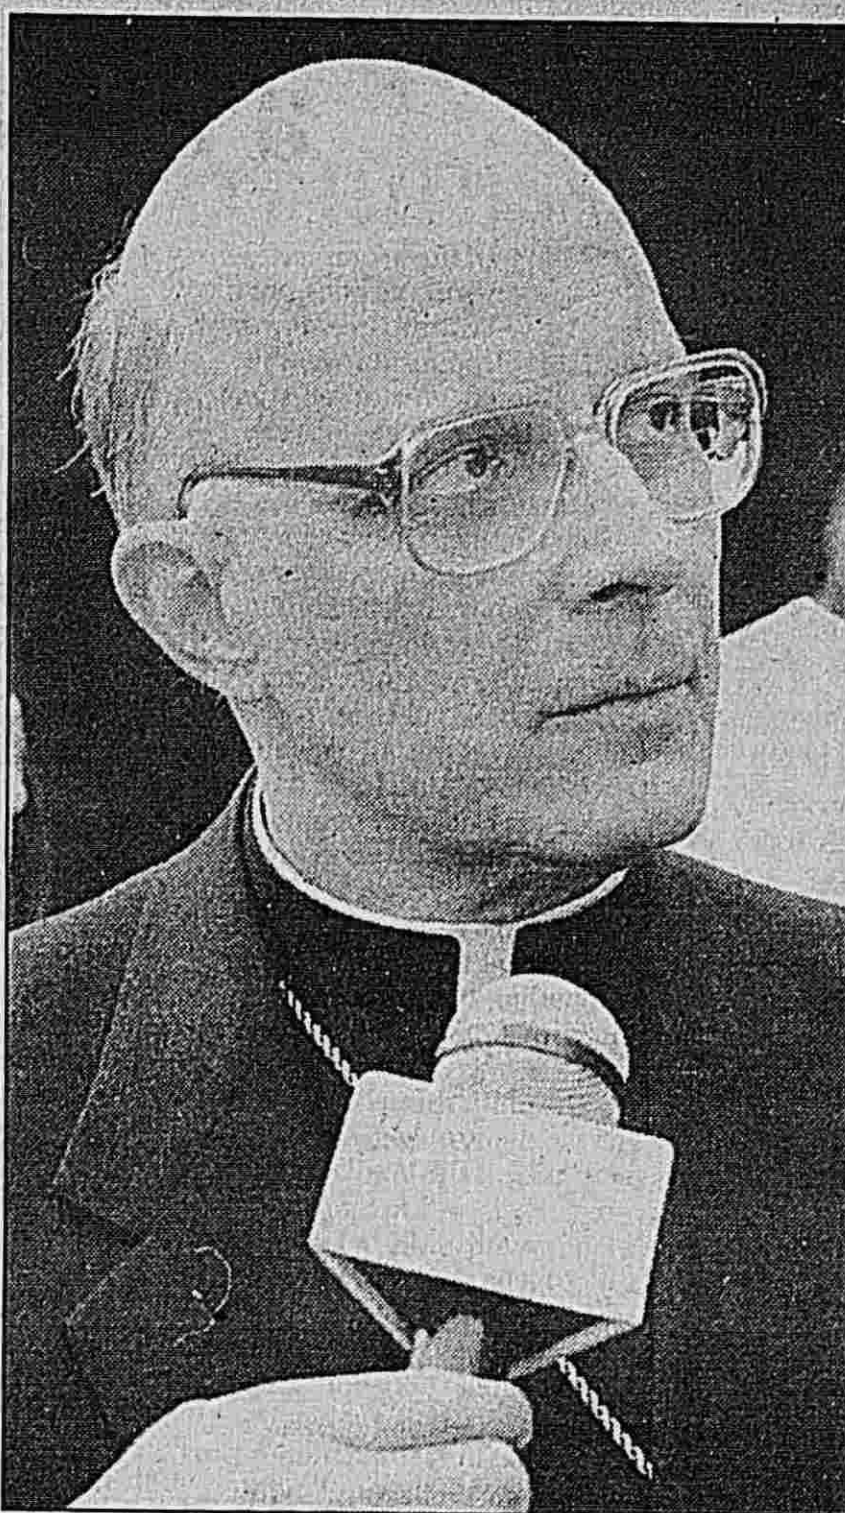

Vernon Hills—Residents, non-residents, old and young alike began work on the Kids Kastle at Deerpath Park on Tuesday, May 27. The approximately 13,000 square foot, volunteer funded playground, will be worth an estimated $450,000 when finished and will require over 13,000 man-hours of construction time.

Woodland rebuffs charter school bid

Gages Lake—Citing financial concerns and unanswered questions, Woodland Dist. 50 board of education rejected an opportunity for its students to attend a charter school.

Those objecting on the board carried the day by a 4-2 margin. An effort to set up meetings for further details from Prairie Commons Charter School representatives was denied.

The charter school would be located at the Prairie Crossing subdivision, located south of Grayslake along Route 45. It borders both Woodland and Fremont Dist. 79. Fremont's board will consider the formal proposal June 12. Charter school supporters will decide if one school district approval is enough to begin. They are a creation of state legislation and Prairie Commons would be the first. The school, in its first year 1998-99, would be for grades kindergarten through sixth. Plans are to use the Wright Schoolhouse, an historic structure, in the first year.

Archbishop recalls Lake County roots, outlines agenda

By JASON J. KING
Staff Reporter

As a young boy, Archbishop Francis George spent summers at his grandmother's home on Channel Lake near Antioch.

On Tuesday, May 27, George returned to Lake County to give the homily at the fourth of six vicariate eucharistic celebrations scheduled during his first month as Archbishop of the Archdiocese of Chicago.

George addressed questions about the role the church should play in growth-oriented Lake County as well as questions about the similarities and differences between Chicago and Lake County.

"The challenge of the church is to meet that population growth and to preach the gospel effectively and see that there are parishes and schools as necessary to help the newcomers find their home in the church."

Archbishop Francis George, on the challenges growth brings to the church.

"The challenge of the church is to meet that population growth and to preach the gospel effectively; and see that there are parishes and schools as necessary to help the newcomers find their home in the church," said George. "That's true here, that's true everywhere, but there are particular challenges because of the growth."

When asked how the growth of Lake County affects the relationship between the county and the rest of the archdiocese, George said, "Maybe it means we have to pay more attention to Lake County," with a laugh and added, "I hadn't thought of that but I guess it does mean that doesn't it?"

George said that the basic issues facing the church, both in Chicago and in Lake County, are the same. The institutional issues facing the church, however, are different.

George said he was grateful for the welcome that he has received and for all the letters that he has received from Lake County. George also said that he hopes to visit each parish in Lake County as he has done in other diocese where he has been bishop before. He added he would like to do confirmations in a few places each year.

"I don't want to lose touch with life in the parishes," said George, "which is where the church really is the strongest."

Water safety bill on Governor's desk

Antioch—Legislation launched by Lake County elected officials to improve boating safety has landed on Governor Jim Edgar's desk for signature. The law provides improved requirements for child safety, an altered basis for police to stop boaters suspected of alcohol use, and greater control of the use of personal watercraft including a provision that renters must be at least 16 years old.

MHS students complete plane

Mundelein—Twenty Mundelein High School students finished four years of precision construction work on a fourth student built plane. It will soon roll out of the school into the hands of the Federal Aviation Administration. The federal agency will conduct the final air worthiness inspection at Campbell Field Airport in Round Lake Park this summer.

MHS Aviation Instructor Jim Jackson started the program to build aircraft in 1979. This year's model took more than 100 students four years and 4,000 hours to build. The Pitts Special, a very carefully built plane, is to be used by Northern Illinois University scientists undertaking studies on glaciers in Alaska with a National Science Foundation grant. The scientists are investigating the phenomenon known as the "green house effect," and the plane will shuttle them between elevations and glaciers.

School impact fees refunded

Wadsworth—Wadsworth's decision to finally enforce its almost year old ordinance for collecting the school impact fees is starting to impact the non-complying districts.

Wadsworth has instituted a 10 percent administrative fee to be collected to cover costs incurred by the village while acquiring school impact fees from the developers.

Only two districts Beach Park District 3 and Zion High School have signed a contract allowing the village to collect their fee. The other districts within the village limits include Woodland, Millburn, Warren Township High School and Gurnee District 56.

Up until now the village has looked the other way regarding the contract, but they have decided to start honoring their ordinance and refund impact fees from a developer that would have gone to Gurnee District 56 and Warren Township High School. This is the first time the village has refunded money to the developers, but if the contract remains unsigned the practice will continue as new homes are built.

Schools get new office, site

Grayslake—Grayslake District 46 announced it has an agreement to purchase the 22 acre Frederick property for $800,000, located at 33235 Barron Boulevard (Route 83), on the east side of the road.

Superintendent Dr. Joan Hochschild said the home on the property will serve the districts office space needs for several years. The current offices in the white house near the middle school will be used for the Technology and Special Education Services Departments currently housed in the middle school. The administrative offices are scheduled to move this August.

The property, which runs from Route 83 all the way to Atkinson Road, could be utilized for a school site in the future.

ACHS principal leaving

Antioch—Antioch Community High School principal Dr. Susan Mullendore will leave at the end of June to become principal of Muncie Central High School in Indiana.

Efforts to identify a new principal were scheduled to begin Wednesday afternoon. An attempt will be made to hire a successor by early to mid-July.

Mullendore has served ACHS for two years. Superintendent Dr. Dennis Hockney said of his relationship with Mullendore, "we have been partners in developing a vision for the future of this high school. It has been an exciting two years. Dr. Mullendore has contributed greatly to an improved morale among the student body. She will be missed by students and their parents."

Stubborn Guv baffling his party

Gov. Jim Edgar stubbornly grips his income tax hike plan for Illinois school funding even in the face of potential political ruin. Fellow Republicans in the General Assembly are frustrated and mystified over the governor's stand. House Minority Leader Bob Churchill (R-Antioch) says Edgar is ignoring healthy economic growth that will provide the state with a surplus in excess of $1 billion, more than enough to fund education initiatives. State Rep. Mark Beaubien (R-Barrington) repeats the refrain of the mainstream GOP in Springfield, "Who's pushing the governor?"

It's easy to see why Democratic leader and Speaker Mike Madigan supports Edgar. Madigan understands the electorate and Illinois politics. Increasing the income tax 25 percent will be political suicide, so let the Republicans fall on a sword before the 1998 elections.

For the first time in a blue moon, Chicago Democrats aren't looking for more money from the Legislature. "They'll take it, but they're not asking for more money," explains Churchill. Republicans are ready to increase education funding—without an onerous income tax increase. The mystery remains why Edgar is so obstinate about increasing everyone's taxes.

Market day spells summer

Time to call off that fruitless search for spring. Coming as good news are reports that farmers markets will be opening in a few weeks. Now a suburban—and summer—institution, farmers markets in some ways supplant, but by no means replace the venerable roadside vegetable and produce stand where city folk can touch the soil and select fresh, field-grown products.

Where the roadside stand shines with goodness, the typical Lake County farmers market shines with glitz. A variety of edible delights vie with crafts and floral offerings to provide a colorful weekly bazaar until autumn days turn cold.

The farmers market also offers more than sustenance for the eyes and mouth. Market day has become a gathering place for friends and neighbors to visit and connect with their community, sort of like the old town square. Civic leaders haven't overlooked the magnet effect offered by the impromptu markets. The outdoor sales events have become vital to downtown economic vitality.

For wholesome sights and smells, the farmers market is hard to beat.

Raftis' role being revived

An attempt to resuscitate the political life of Dick Raftis is more than a rear-guard action being waged by pro-development forces. Raftis likely would be a member of the influential Lake County Zoning Board of Appeals today had not County Board Rep. Sandy Cole (R-Wildwood) invoked a procedural rule requiring that zoning appointments be considered first by the County Board's Planning and Zoning Committee.

Running on a platform of controlled growth and open space preservation, Cole defeated Raftis when he sought a second term last year. Even out of office, Raftis remains a significant player in the forces for dictating land use policy through his unique position as manager of the Lake County Farm Bureau whose membership includes farm owners and land speculators.

County Board leadership has the votes to force the appointment of Raftis at its June meeting. The appointment, however, would fly in the face of citizens fed up with clogged highways, flooding, the disappearing countryside and rocketing real estate taxes. Those are the very reasons residents voted Raftis out of office.

Old shows

Since our mention several weeks ago of former, and few present, main street movie houses, several readers called to point out some omissions. Waukegan, used to have three busy shows, the Genesee, Rialto and Times. North Chicago had the Park on Sheridan Rd., long shuttered. Highland Park still has its venerable Highland Park Theater that has been upgraded to a modern multiple-screen operation. The omissions were intentional, but we're happy to mention more places that afforded so many people so many good times.

Clash of views

International correspondent Georgie Anne Geyer will be addressing the Women's Republican Club of the 10th Congressional Dist. (that's Congressman John Porter's territory) Friday, June 6. Geyer will bring an interesting message, how the diversity craze has balkanized America to the detriment of shared goals essential to national unity. Interestingly, Geyer's views clash with the editorial positions of many of the newspapers in which she is syndicated. The program will take place at 6:30 p.m. at 656 Ardsley Rd., Winnetka. The general public is invited. Tickets are $5 payable at the door.

Quaint idea

Newly elected Highway Com. Jim Jorgensen of Lake Villa Township reportedly has put a stop to a "help yourself" practice at the township highway garage gasoline pumps. Quaint notion for grass-roots government, especially since that seems to be the thinking at federal and state levels.

Interactive study

Dr. Piergiorgio Uslenghi, associate dean of the University of Illinois-Chicago College of Engineering is ready to bring engineering courses to Lake County—if there's interest. He'll be at the U of I Cooperative Extension Service office, Rte. 45, Grayslake, from 4 to 6 p.m. Wednesday, June 4, to answer questions about mechanical, electrical and civil engineering courses to be conducted by interactive video. Faculty members will make periodic visits to the evening and weekend classes.

COMMENTARY

A road by any other name still a parade of potholes

By SID BORDELON

All right class," intoned distinguished Professor of Suburban Planning D. Elayed Repairs, "our challenge today involves the scope of "grand scale highway traffic flow."

"Do I hear any comments that pertain directly to Lake County's continuing dismal situation?" "You, Mr. Con Crete. As a roadbed engineering student, what do you have to say about Lake County's traffic flow?"

"Oh, professor Repairs, I'm sorry I misunderstood you. I heard the word 'grand' and it immediately reminded me of the horrible bumping and jolting we took yesterday on Grand Ave. to Route 45 as we went home from Gurnee Mills. It was like trying to thread through an obstacle course." And, as far as "traffic flow" is concerned, I believe in English class they call that an oxymoron."

"Well, said Prof. Repairs with a smirk, "Please listen to the specific question, Mr. Crete, We don't want the class to become involved or get upset by your personal travel problems." "Wait professor" interrupted another student identified as Mr. Ex Cavation, "I just broke a heavy-duty shock absorber on that same stretch and almost had an accident trying to dodge a ton of dangerous potholes."

"OK, OK class," the professor said in a more obviously heated tone of voice, "let's get back to the problem at hand—Lake County's traffic flow." "Where's Ms End-loader?, she's supposed to be bringing the country's transportation chart to class showing its "planning priorities," "Gosh professor, "popped up Mr. Asfalt, "She was only two cars behind be at the Grand Ave. and Route 21 underpass when the light changed, so I'll bet she won't make it here for at least another half hour or so."

"Yes, lamented Prof. Repairs, 'traffic flow' in Lake County really is an oxymoron. And all of us should feel pretty dumb for putting up with such an unconscionable lack of remedy from those responsible for corrective action."

PARTY LINES

PARTY LINES, THE LAKELAND NEWSPAPERS' COLUMN OF POLITICAL OPINION, IS PREPARED FROM STAFF REPORTS.

Hanson promises to square-up with new highway commissioner

Technically, Highway Com. Jim Jorgensen has no funds to maintain Lake Villa Township roadways. The required annual budget hearing got lost in the shuffle of changing administrations. Supervisor Sue Hanson said a June meeting will be held to make amends. Jorgensen, who ran on an opposing party, is getting along fine with the supervisor.

Future foe?

You'll be hearing a lot more of this as the months roll by—speculation over who's opposing County Board Rep. Carol Calabrese (R-Libertyville) for re election in 1998. Consider the quality of the reports: Bob Depke opposing Carol. They live in different districts. So much for informed speculation.

In the mail

Invitations have been distributed for Sheriff Gary DelRe's first fund raiser as the kick off for his 1998 election campaign. Sheriff DelRe will be feted at 5:30 p.m. Thursday, June 12, at Country Squire. State's Atty. Mike Waller has signed on as honorary chairman.

Adams is president of Green Oaks.

New roles

In addition to Adams, new officers for the Lake County Municipal League include: vice-president Paul Baumunk, mayor of Lindenhurst; secretary Pat Carey, mayor of Grayslake; treasurer Marilyn Shlueflug, mayor of Antioch. Buffalo Grove President Sidney Math-

Tax villain of the month

The head of Illinois' largest taxpayer organization, the National Taxpayers United of Illinois, has named Gov. Jim Edgar the tax villain of the month. Jim Tobin, president of the NTU calls Edgar "an embarrassment to the national Republican Party and a scourge of Illinois taxpayers." He also says Edgar is "a wholly-owned subsidiary of the teacher unions, and wants to raise taxes to pay them back so they will support him when he runs either for reelection or for the U.S. Senate." Tobin is calling on Edgar to "show his true colors" and run next election as a candidate for the Socialist Party.

of the Lake County Township Officials Assn. Kiesgen has been a township official for three decades, serving as town clerk before elected supervisor in 1993 and winning re-election this spring.

Shortening terms

Newly-elected Lake County Municipal League President Tom Adams' first action was to recognize the outgoing accomplishments of President Marilyn Sindles of Mundelein. Under Sindles' administration, a standing committee system was established which allowed more municipal officials to be involved in expanding the league's efforts in the areas of program, finance and legislative action.

His second proposal, however, was to change the terms of the office of league officers from two years to one year. The action was un-

Time for Chairman Grever to take a stand

There is an opening on the zoning board of appeals, and the contortions of the Lake County Board trying to fill it have been very entertaining. The tradition of "good old boy" politics dictates that former County Board member Dick Raftis (former chair of the Planning, Building and Zoning committee) get the spot.

Current County Board chair Bob Grever had announced his intentions of nominating Raftis to the Zoning Board, but new Board Member Sandy Cole found that the Planning, Building and Zoning committee (chaired by Pam Newton), faced with the rock of a County Chairman announcing his intentions to nominate Raftis, and the hard place of a roomful of concerned citizens, opted for cowardice and decided not to make any recommendation at all. Committeeman Al Westerman was the lone member wishing to discuss the issue.

The committee has failed the County by not finding the best possible candidate for the position. Dick Raftis does have years on the zoning committee, but he also has a proven track record of arrogance and a strong pro-development stance. His views were soundly rejected by the voters last year. And if they don't want him on the Planning Committee, they certainly don't want him on the Zoning Board of Appeals. The whole nomination just flies in the face of the people of Lake County. The Zoning Board of Appeals needs someone with more moderate views, and a willingness to listen to both sides of an issue.

Let's hope Bob Grever takes the hint and changes his plans, or at least that the County Board develops some gumption and votes for the benefit of the people of Lake County.

Sign fear bunkum!

Hooray for County Board member Suzi Schmidt!

At the last board meeting, she started action to remove the growing number of signs along the public highways. These signs deface the countryside and allow private enterprise (mostly large-scale developers) to advertise on public rights of way paid for by taxpayers.

What is with County Administrator Dwight Magalis? He claims that there is a controversy whether the signs can be removed. That's bunk!

The public owns those rights of way—we the taxpayers. The signs should be removed immediately. Large-scale developers have the financial responsibility to advertise legitimately and lawfully, without assistance from the paying public. I shall continue to monitor the actions of the County Board to confirm this practice is discontinued without further delay.

Her anecdote is worth $400

A funny thing happened to Renee Boyle of Mundelein, so she wrote a short item about it and mailed it to Reader's Digest magazine:

"A nearby grocery store issues checkout coupons for your next shopping trip based on products you have bought that day. If you buy cereal, for example, they might give you coupons for future cereal purchases. Not long ago, I picked up some jalapeno peppers, green peppers, taco sauce, hot sauce, onions and other ingredients for making tacos.

"I got one coupon that day: for one dollar off my next purchase of Tums!"

Reader's Digest pays $400 for anecdotes used in such departments as Life in These United States, All in a Day's Work, Campus Comedy and Humor in Uniform.

Over the years I have submitted several of my favorite yarns but, alas, nary a nibble. The magazine receives thousands of submissions.

But Renee Boyle got a nibble. Reader's Digest called recently to confirm her story just in case they decided to use it.

Last week she was thumbing through the just-out June issue and found her item among nine others under Life in These United States.

"I got on the phone and called the whole family," she told me. "I was surprised, it was the first time I had written anything."

Renee, 27, has been a music teacher and currently works in sales. Now she has sold a $400 item to Reader's Digest, something many of us have attempted with no success.

I even sent one of my anecdotes twice, hoping for a second opinion. Aimed at the Humor in Uniform column, it was a tale from the Great Lakes Navy boot camp back in the 1950s. During our barracks' first roll call, the chief petty officer called out the name Sailor.

Sailor? I went over to the young man and asked him his first name. "Ira," he said.

"Do you have a middle name?" "Mitchell," he said. And he also had a third name, Albert.

Ira Mitchell Albert Sailor. I.M.A. Sailor had joined the Navy!

A fledgling journalist, I wrote an article about him for the Great Lakes Bulletin. It was picked up by the Associated Press and printed in newspapers throughout the country, even Time magazine.

As I got to know Sailor, the ultimate opportunist, he admitted none of those were his original names. He had his moniker changed legally just before joining the Navy, and it paid off—he spent his hitch as a celebrity of sorts. I later saw him on television shows such as "I've Got a Secret" and "The Name's the Same."

I suppose Reader's Digest didn't buy my anecdote because it isn't really funny.

However, here's a funny one written by someone else. I read it perhaps a dozen years ago:

A wife told her husband it was time he explained the facts of life ... uh, sex ... to his little boy.

The dad accepted the assignment but found it uncomfortable. He stumbled and fumbled, dredged up the old birds and bees analogy, but couldn't seem to come to the point.

Finally, the little boy took him off the hook: "Is it better than an Eskimo Pie, Dad?"

The father sighed with relief, smiled and said, "Son, it's better than a hundred Eskimo Pies."

Bulls win ugly; Memorial Day shrinks coverage

The Eastern Conference Finals. The Chicago Bulls. The Miami Heat. Pat Riley. Phil Jackson. Michael Jordan. Alonzo Mourning. You would think that the combination of those things would make for an exciting game. So did I. But, alas, we all were wrong.

Last Thursday I attended the Bulls-Heat game 2 of the Eastern Conference Finals. And, to my surprise (not to mention the 24,000 other fans), the game turned out to be the lowest-scoring playoff game in modern NBA history—75-68.

I thought it was a good overall game—maybe due to my experience in competitive basketball I was able to see through the poor shooting and dreadful execution. That being said, the fan in me was still dumbfounded to see that at half-time the Bulls hadn't reached 40, and the Heat hadn't reached 30. With a final score similar to that of a high school game, and the quality of play far below that of our prep ballers, I was glad that I received the tickets as a gift, and didn't have to pay the outrageous prices.

Games of that importance and between teams that are supposed to be the elite of the elite are supposed to be played at a much higher level. Now, with all this talk of the NBA going down hill and the league being watered-down, I have always been a defendant of the NBA. But last week's display made me take a hard look at the league, and I think I do see a difference in quality of play since the league has expanded in recent years, along with the advent of the high school-to-pro trend that is creeping up in front of everyone's eyes. Well, I'll still watch the games, but I'll be looking to see if any more chinks appear in the armor of this marketing beast called the NBA.

Here are some little tid bits from around the area during the Memorial Day weekend:

Zach Edmond and Karl Lindler, seniors at Lake Zurich High School, will travel to Japan June 19th to compete in wrestling meets and a cultural exchange with Japanese students. The two wrestlers will travel with their coach, Patrick Manning, on this unique opportunity—which is a first for the school.

To all you youth sports fans and supporters, I am sorry to say that this week, due to the very limited space of this holiday-shortened sports section, I could not find any room for all of the scores and standings. But, we will resume our normal sports coverage again next week, and we will continue to include as much as we can in our local coverage. Our Athletes of the Week and Sidelines features will also resume their regular schedules next week.

Also, your beloved Lakeland Newspapers will be sponsoring a golf outing July 21st at the Renwood Country Club in Round Lake. I will have more information about this event in coming weeks, but it will give all you golfers out there a chance to whoop up on your local sports editor in a sport which I am very much a rookie.

MINDING YOUR OWN BUSINESS

Don Taylor

A key to long-term survival

The most successful companies today are those who focus on doing simple things well. Today's results do not satisfy them. They know the level of world-wide competition will increase tomorrow. Therefore, continual improvement becomes their only guarantee of survival and success.

The best run companies focus on excellence. They know their products and services must be of superior quality, deliver true value and improve with every new product generation.

The benefits of quality are widespread. Customers receive better products, competitive prices and vastly improved customer service. Management benefits from increasing employee morale, reduced stress levels and higher levels of compensation based on increases in productivity. The owners of the company gain in the areas of increasing profits and growing long-term company value. When companies implement quality improvement programs correctly, everyone wins.

Even small businesses can profit from quality improvement efforts. While the process itself may not be as sophisticated as larger company's programs, the benefits are the same. Small companies with good quality programs are seeing increasing profits, higher levels of customer satisfaction, improving competitive positions and employees who are proud to be a part of the process.

Here are the questions of the day: If everyone wins, why aren't all companies involved in the direct pursuit of excellence? Why aren't all businesses and organizations implementing quality programs?

I believe there are three main reasons companies have not jumped on the quality improvement bandwagon. First, they are not yet aware of the benefits they receive when implementing such programs. If the business is doing pretty well, the owners and managers may not be looking for additional improvement. It's the old "If it ain't broke, don't fix it" philosophy.

However, statistics show that companies who focus on quality issues do operate more effectively, increase earnings, gain marketshare and improve their competitive strength. I assume these data aren't important to firms because their short-term survival isn't threatened. They are comfortable in their ignorance.

The second reason companies haven't begun quality programs is that it requires change. Experts agree that only babies are comfortable with change. I cannot explain why some well-run companies would resist utilizing proven self-improvement concepts, but change is a barrier.

The third reason is unconcern. These companies know about quality, but they just don't care.

I believe these firms may not survive many more years. We will see some of them fall by the wayside. They may fall with the fanfare of front page headlines or just slip quietly from the scene. Quality-driven companies will swallow up

These 'doctors' still make house calls

By GLORIA DAVIS
Staff Reporter

"That old adage, 'If it's not broken don't fix it,' is all well and good, but what does one do when 'it' is really broken, unless you are handy around the house yourself?"

Those of us who have five thumbs on each hand were destined to either do without, or buy new, unless we could get a local handy man to come to our aid. These are few and far between.

In the Lake Zurich area, this problem has now been solved since Nick Karabetsos, a home builder by trade, opened a House Doctors franchise.

You won't find these doctors in a hospital or office, but you might find them in your kitchen, on your roof, or in your basement, because House Doctors is a new company that specializes in very affordable handyman/home repair services.

A House Doctor will come to your home when called and fix everything that needs fixing, or do any other handy man chores you are in need of, all in one call if possible.

They have the tools, skills and time to do all those odd jobs around your home or business that never seem to get done.

Estimates are free and there is no service charge. House Doctors specializes in doing those necessary smaller jobs at affordable prices. The minimum charge is $48.

According to Karabetsos, "We provide our customers with the absolute best service possible, all of our handymen are bonded, and our work is guaranteed and insured."

Wise men of today say, "If you want your children to be wealthy, don't urge them to become a doctor or lawyer, because electricians and plumbers make just as much money, and the training is shorter and costs less." Let House Doctors reduce those high costs!

Of course, though all of Karabetsos' staff are trained professionals, and due to the smaller jobs they may repair, they are not required to be certified plumbers or electricians. "Our handymen do everything as quickly and effectively, and we are able to charge much lower prices," added Karabetsos.

"Even if we come out to your home and give you an estimate on the jobs you want done and you decide not to have us do them, you will still get our free estimate gifts," said Karabetsos.

Jobs that House Doctors handle most frequently are carpentry, fixtures, installing or fixing storm doors and windows, repairing faucets, leaky pipes, stopped-up drains, staining furniture or woodwork, repairing or installing ceiling and exhaust fans, adding weather stripping, repairing garbage disposals, installing and repairing garage door openers, recaulking bathtubs, installing window treatments, entertainment centers, painting walls inside and out, repairing drywalls, adjusting doors, repairing tiles and toilets, adding tub grabbars, hanging pictures, changing light bulbs, installing shelving and crown moulding, and much, much more. Maybe the job you need done will add to our list of possibilities.

Remember, House Doctors will try and cure your home or office of all its non-working ills in just one visit if possible.

If you have lost patience with those chores still undone, this service is just what the "doctor ordered."

Growth in communities prompts credit union to change name

Up until now, a thriving credit union in northeastern Illinois has had two names, both of which clearly represented its direction at the time. It was back in 1933 when "Warren Township Credit Union" opened its doors, with an exclusive charter to serve the Warren community.

Then, in 1978, after a merger with a credit union in the neighboring Newport Township, the name was appropriately changed to "Warren Newport Credit Union."

However, now it's 1997. And the credit union's geographic reach has expanded much further, along with the board's and management's vision for the future. With the addition of Avon Twp. in 1993, the institution now serves employees of numerous select groups in three townships—with a total of 13,755 members.

"We realized the name 'Warren Newport' had become too limiting," explained Liz Davenport, executive vice president of the credit union for the past 10 years.

"It suggests that one must live in either Warren or Newport Twp. to join our organization—which simply isn't the case. Ours is a progressive financial organization that has evolved to encompass a much broader territory and an ever-growing list of competitive products and services."

The task was for the credit union to find a new name that would relay its dedication to serve many communities vs. just two townships. "We also wanted the name to reflect our commitment to building strong, trusting relationships with our valued members," added Davenport. "That's why we chose 'Community Trust Credit Union.'"

The newly named Community Trust is a full-service credit union headquartered at 1313 Skokie Hwy. in Gurnee, with a branch at 1868 E.

Belvidere Rd. in Grayslake. Savings, checking and loan services—which will be unaffected by the name change—include: share certificates, a money market account, "no monthly charge" checking, mortgages, home equity loans, auto, personal and student loans, credit cards, ATM stations, drive-through windows, and more.

Throughout the '90s, the credit union has experienced significant financial growth. Between 1991 and 1996, assets and deposits increased at a rate of 118 percent, with the total loan balance rising 120 percent. As of March 1997, assets totaled over $77 million, with deposits reaching over $70 million and loans totaling over $50 million.

Individuals interested in learning more about this dynamic organization are encouraged to call the Gurnee office at 662-2050 or the Grayslake branch at 223-0028.

Former Bull headlines breakfast

With the Chicago Bulls in search of another NBA championship, the Lake County Power Breakfast announced that Chicagoland media personality and former Bull Norm Van Lier will be their special guest at the June meeting.

The monthly business forum is scheduled for June 4 at Midlane Country Club in Wadsworth. Joining Van Lier as guest speaker is Don Paulka, founder and president of the Chicago Challenge, an organization that provides quality education, support and mentoring services for underprivileged youth, who will discuss how former athletes are involved in an give back to their community.

The Chicago Challenge is a tax exempt charitable and educational organization.

Their goal is to give some of our nation's most disadvantaged inner-city children an opportunity to realize their full potential... potential that might otherwise remain untapped.

"The Challenge helps provide these youth some of the basics that many of us take for granted, such as a quality education, health care, counseling, tutoring and extracurricular activities," state Lenny Khayat, general manger of Midlane Country Club.

The Lake County Power Breakfast is open to the public the first Wednesday of each month beginning at 7:30 a.m. at Midlane Country Club, 4555 W. Yorkhouse Rd., Wadsworth.

PPG boosts Gurnee area economy

PPG Industries' Gurnee chemicals plant added more than $21 million to the area economy during 1996, according to David B. Church, general manager, specialty chemicals.

The largest single segment of the economic contributions was the payroll for the 235 PPG employees at the Gurnee facility and contract maintenance personnel. Purchases from 157 suppliers with a 50-mile radius of the plant ranked second, Church said.

Also included in the figure were area utility and transportation costs; environmental operations; controls and equipment; and state and local taxes. The concern of PPG employees for the community was demonstrated by their contribution of more than $7,000 to the United Way campaign.

The PPG Industries Foundation gave $5,000 to a variety of local programs and projects.

The Gurnee plant is the hub of PPG's worldwide surfactant and specialty chemicals business, which serves such markets as personal skin and hair care, food emulsifiers, and manufacturing process chemicals for fermentation, mining, food processing, coatings, waste-water treatment and paper industries.

It is the leading source of kosher food emulsifiers, beet sugar processing chemicals, and performance additives that enhance coating properties. Its products also are directed to customers in the textile, metalworking, emulsions polymerization, adhesive, oil field, health care and pharmaceutical, graphic arts and auto care industries.

In addition to specialty and industrial chemicals, Pittsburgh-based PPG is a global producer of glass, fiber glass and coatings. Corporate sales in 1996 reached a record $7.2 billion, with the chemicals business accounting for more than $1.6 billion. Corporate earnings were $744 million.

ComEd donates

SURVIVAL: Successful companies focus on little things some of these no-performers and will change the culture in a dramatic and positive way.

Steps to improving quality

- Decide to improve. Every quality program exists today solely because someone took the initiative. Decide today to pursue quality initiatives.

- Measure your success. You cannot improve anything you can't measure. If you want to improve your customer satisfaction level, you must first know how satisfied your customers are now.

Then take steps to improve, and measure again.

- Get comfortable with change. People resist change because they are afraid they will lose something valuable to them.

Therefore, you need to involve everyone in your quality program.

Help your people at all levels see the benefits of change.

- Keep raising the bar. No matter how successful you are today, you will secure your future only when you continue to raise the standard. Tomorrow's competition will be tougher and you must rise to the challenge.

- Keep learning about quality improvement. Study successful companies.

Attend quality improvement seminars and workshops. Read articles and books on quality. The more you know the more effectively you can compete.

OUR TOWN
Elizabeth Eaken
Hello, and welcome to 'Our Town'

Welcome to "Our Town" which is all about your town, friends and neighbors and, possibly, you may glimpse your own name in this column from time to time.

As part of the new design here at Lakeland Newspapers, I will be writing a weekly column. To start off the first week I thought I should introduce myself.

I started my career with Lakeland Newspapers in October of 1995 and began covering Wadsworth in September of 1996, when the "Wadsworth News" was born.

I came to Lake County with my family, who relocated here from Tennessee. I've been somewhat of a nomad in the last 10 years or so. Even here in Lake County, I've lived in Lake Bluff and Guiney, before my recent move to the Lincoln Park neighborhood in Chicago. My friends and relatives claim they no longer write my name in ink in their address books.

I spent the first few years of my life in Kaneohe, Oahu, Hawaii. There, unfortunately may I add, my parents decided to return to Midwest roots and moved to in Chicago. In college I started out as a public relations major, but found my way into the journalism program. My affinity for writing was sparked by the fact that I always had my nose buried in a book as a kid.

Covering Wadsworth brings back memories for me of my own family. My grandpa, Eaken, was a farmer in Iroquois County and the town my grandparents lived in was a little country hamlet similar to Wadsworth, although it was definitely in a more remote location.

Often, I'm reminded of my hometown when talking with residents of the area, who reminisce about the way things used to be and where they're heading. Everyone in Newport Township seems to know everyone else, either as distant relatives, neighbors, or former classmates.

If you have interesting information or anecdotes to submit for "Our Town" call staff reporter Elizabeth Eaken at 223-8181, ext. 178 or e-mail, edit@lnd.com.

Griefnotes

How can I prevent difficulties from grief?

Many who confront grief for the first time are surprised at the intensity of their feelings. Grief is most often associated with the death of a loved one but it can also result from divorce, loss of bodily function, moving or from child growing up and leaving home. Because grief is poorly understood, those who have not experienced it personally can be poor helpers. By learning about grief ahead of time we can more capably assist friends in their time of need and can more readily understand the intensity of feelings when death affects our families. Take time to read and inquire about grief and learn ways to assist those in need of support.

How To Survive The Job Search

By Nancy Sakol

Dear Search,
I am currently finishing my 3rd year of college and due to get out at the end of May. I am one of many, I am sure, who will need to work this summer to finish my final year of college. I am trying to seek employment for the summer either on a full or part time basis. How do you feel I should go about this task. I attend school out of state so for me to run up expensive telephone calls and countless letters may not prove effective. What approach do you suggest?
J.D.—Libertyville

Dear J.D.,
Judging by the date of your letter, (May 10), I felt I should address this situation in this weeks column. For college students aiming for employment over the summer months, my advice is to start early. For example, the months of February and March are ideal for landing summer jobs, if you plan to work over the summer... you should begin your search as early as possible. If you are responsible and take your work seriously, keep in mind that corporations and local companies, around those months, have already begun to prepare for offering college internships as well. I recommend college internships for the summer breaks, because it can allow you to earn and learn. did you know there are many companies, such as ours, who will allow a college student to earn college credits while working to gain experience needed in their field? For instance, and accounting major may be able to find a position within a corporation where they may be auditing, or calculating inventories. A business major may find themselves working in an administrative assistant type of position and a journalism major...writing copy or layout for a local newspaper. Be resourceful. Some colleges require you to pay for the college credits, however, if you are able to fulfill your schools, requirements, you can not only end up with the college credit, but money in your pockets as well. (NOTE: Only pay for college credits if you need them.) Requirements for these internships differ. Some require a paper at the end of the internship or a daily journal, some require a portfolio of samples of accomplishments and others require letters of recommendation from various department heads that you come in contact with while employed. All colleges & universities that I have come in contact with however, require the internships be related to the major the student is enrolled in. Find out who to contact in your school regarding internships. Understand that there may only be a handful of internships which have been offered to your school, but that doesn't mean that you cannot do well on your own. Again, be resourceful, speak with anyone you know who may get you the name of a person of authority in a company...make the call yourself! Good Luck!

Brick accents, a front gable, and a railed, wrap-around covered porch add to the country-style charm of the Wehba. It is a medium size home that revolves around a large living room. Quiet rooms - the den and master suite - are to the left of the living room and the children's rooms are to the right.

The walk-through kitchen allows easy access to the nook and living room. Amenities in the kitchen include a range and oven, dishwasher, plenty of counter space, a walk-in pantry and an eating bar. The den in the kitchen overlooks the covered porch and allows you to see who is coming up the walkway. The nook's garage access is convenient for unloading groceries and other supplies.

Bay windows wrap around the front of the den or home office. This room has a high vaulted ceiling, with still more light coming in from the half round windows in the gable overhead.

A master suite, with French doors opening onto a concrete patio dominates the left wing. Adding to the warmth of the master suite is a three-sided fireplace for those cold winter nights, whether relaxing in bed or enjoying the spa tub. Other amenities include a large walk-in closet with shelves, double sinks and private toilet/shower area.

Bedrooms two and three are separated and share the second bathroom. The utility room is centrally located for the convenience of doing laundry or cleaning.

For a study kit of the WEHBA (405-33LP60), send $10.00, to Landmark Designs, 33127 Saginaw Rd., Cottage Grove, OR 97424 (Be sure to specify plan name & number). For a collection of plan books featuring our most popular home plans, send $20 to Landmark, or call 1-800-562-1151.

PET OF THE WEEK

CAROL

Just like her name, this young lady is a rich chocolate color with a white flashing at her neck and chest. She is under two years, has been spayed, has all her shots and is a very elegant, sleek mid-sized girl. She's a mix of lab and dobe who adores people! She just thrives on adult attention and returns it with affectionate kisses. She is a candidate for a family with older children, since she seems fearful of small ones. She is very clean in her habits, loves walks on a leash and will be a fine family addition. The ASSISI ANIMAL FOUNDATION welcomes adult volunteers who love animals and can give just an hour or two any morning of the week to help in their care in cheerful, cageless no-kill surroundings. You are also invited to take part in the SPRING WALKATHON on June 27, followed by a pot luck picnic! For information on ADOPTION, VOLUNTEERING OR THE WALKATHON, please call: 815-455-9411. Thank You.

Safety begins at home

Now may be the perfect time to tackle those little home improvement projects you've put off. While you work, take a few minutes to make some improvements that not only enhance your home's appearance—but can actually add to your safety and security.

AT&T Security Systems is offering the following tips to help protect your home:

- See clearly: Make certain all hedges are trimmed so porches, windows and doors can be seen from the street. It's easier for burglars to slip into your home unnoticed when shrubbery conceals entry points.

- Consider the criminal mind: Take a good look around for areas that may be an easy target for a break-in. Add locks, windows bars and nails to reinforce any vulnerable areas.

- Leave no window of opportunity: Make certain all screens and storm windows lock from the inside.

- Consider a security system: You may want to consider installing one as an added safety measure. Some home systems provide fire and medical alert features in addition to safe-guarding against break-ins.

- Let there be light: Check that all outside lights are working. Install additional fixtures to ensure that your home is adequately lighted on all four sides. Consider installing timers with a photoelectric eye on lights in several rooms to give the impression someone is home.

- Lock it up: Measure to see if windows are located within 40 inches of any door. If so, secure the door with a double cylinder dead-bolt lock. If your door doesn't have a window, a wide-angle peep hole or intercom should be installed.

- Engage you child: Remind children to keep doors closed and locked at all times, especially the garage door. If you have a home security system, teach your children how to use it.

- Behind closed doors: Teach children to never open the door to strangers, even when an adult is home. If your children's friends often come to play, teach them a secret doorbell ring or knock to announce their visit.

Arebalo 'picks up where others leave off'

Family owned landscape company still very competitive in today's market

The Arebalo Landscape Co., located in Grayslake, is a family owned and operated business whose name has been synonymous with quality and creativity in naturalistic environments since 1964.

This allows us to give our clients the attention they deserve and expect.

"We at Arebalo have devoted much of our 30 years in the business to remaining abreast of current and future trends in the landscape industry. We feel that our creativity and know how has made us very competitive in today's market," said Eliazar Arebalo, president of the company.

From landscape design to construction, from maintenance to snow removal, we at Arebalo strongly believe that we can improve your outside appearance and would appreciate the opportunity to share our knowledge and assist you in developing an effective landscape program that will enhance your home or business.

In landscape design, Arebalo offers a design program to develop a plan that's right for you. In landscape construction, Arebalo's experienced staff has the comprehensive knowledge to take an idea and turn it into a reality.

In an area that seems to be a lost art, our maintenance personnel are equipped to do the job. We can also redo your present landscape area to fit your changing needs. The building of patios, walkways, play areas and walls also falls under our expertise.

For immediate attention to your landscape problems, requirements, or for more information, call (847) 223-1140. We may be able to assist you because ... "Arebalo picks up where others leave off." —By Gloria Davis

Under the leadership of the new bank president, Gary Spahn, and the executive vice president, John Burnett, who has been with the bank since its inception, the bank has aggressively approached the market with new and innovative products.

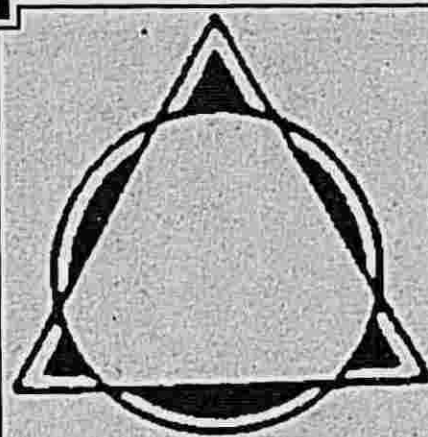

A new home equity product, rolled out in January of 1997, offers customers a 6.9 percent line of credit for six months with a low flexible rate that ranges between one-half over prime and one-quarter below prime after the initial discount period.

The bank has also become very competitive in the CD market often offering the highest rates in the area on both short and long term CDs.

Most recently Anchor introduced their Friendship Line of accounts. A 3 percent Super Now Friendship Checking account pays 3 percent on $3,000 plus balances.

Another new product, the Friendship 1 Checking account is a regular checking account bases services charges on your entire banking relationship offering in total eight different ways to avoid monthly service charges. The bank still returns all checks and deposit slips with statements at no charge, and has not intention of changing that policy.

Stop in and visit Anchor Bank. There's always hot coffee in the lobby, and their friendly staff is always ready to answer your questions or just to visit!

HOUSEHOLD TIPS

Plant clippings

To keep short plant clippings from slipping around in the jar of water use two pieces of florist's tape (transparent tape will also work), crisscross the tape over the top of the jar, in an X pattern, and let it stick to the side, then insert the clippings into the hole this makes.

It's an old florist's trick that works great.

Handy mop

When cleaning out the bottom of kitchen cabinets take everything out and instead of bending down to wash them use a sponge mop! Works great.

For paneling that needs cleaning use the mop again, no bending or stretching. If you have carpet, be sure to cover edges with plastic to catch any excess water drips. Try using a sponge mop, with no sharp edges, to clean out the bathtub!

Toothbrush holder

Keep loose pens and pencils for your purse in a plastic toothbrush travel holder. It will keep the lining of your purse from getting stained with ink marks and it's easy to get to when needed.

Cobweb buster

To dust away those pesky cobwebs, cover a broom with a piece of cloth. Then simply brush them down.

This works great on textured ceilings and keeps it from shedding.

Custom pieces, tasteful decor found at Naked Furniture

Just because it's called Naked Furniture, doesn't mean that the home furnishings you find there are bare and plain or lack style. In fact, it's quite the opposite.

Naked Furniture, located at 1330 S. Milwaukee Ave. in Libertyville, has a comprehensive selection of unfinished (and finished) furniture pieces.

For example, you can choose from 50 different types of chairs, and there are tables, desks, shelves, cabinets, and interesting home office and entertainment center layouts.

As owners Susan and David Differding point out, Naked Furniture showcases its bedroom, dining and living ensembles in a variety of different woods, including maple, pine, birch and cherry, as well as oak.

The Differdings took over Naked Furniture as franchise owners. One of the reasons for the great increase in their business, is the tasteful collection of home decor and accessories, and gifts. Carefully chosen by Susan, the store offers everything from baskets and glassware, to pictures and lamps.

Another reason for their success is that customers are looking for the long term values secured by purchasing solid quality wood products. Naked Furniture pieces will not need the constant replacement of pressed wood products.

Naked Furniture celebrated the grand opening of an additional store in Spring Hill Marketplace, West Dundee, over Memorial Day weekend.

This store, located near to Circuit City across from Spring Hill Mall, carries many new styles of furniture and accessories, while offering the same quality products and services as their Libertyville store.

People who are looking for custom designed pieces, either to finish themselves or to be custom finished by the staff at Naked Furniture, will be pleased with the wide selection of colors and creative finishes available, including the environmentally desirable and popular water-based polyurethane finishes. In addition, artist Leone Ohlson will hand-paint items to customers' specifications.

For more information call the Libertyville store, (847)367-0009, or the West Dundee store at, (847)426-3335.

How to choose a good miniblind

Miniblinds have evolved to become the window covering of choice for many Lake County homeowners.

So how can consumers pick out a high-quality miniblind from among the many that are available?

Miniblind experts offer the following tips to help choose a high-quality miniblind:

- Start by choosing a brand name. Remember, every manufacturer offers products of differing quality. A brand name is just a starting point.

- Metal is best. If the slats and front edge of the miniblind are made of metal, you're holding a quality miniblind.

- Look for miniblinds with parts which can be replaced if broken. Lower grade miniblinds are fastened together with rivets or non-replaceable screws.

Several tips to play it safe at home

Do you know someone who has fallen from a ladder? Slipped in the shower? Closed a door on a finger? Here are some tips to lessen the dangers:

- Keep hallways and stairs well lighted and clear of objects. If stairs have carpet, make sure it is secure.

- Every stairway should have at least one continuous railing. Remove throw rugs from landings.

- Doors should open, close and lock properly. Windows and screens also need to be checked.

- When working from a ladder, avoid overreaching. Keep your hips within the vertical rails of the ladder.

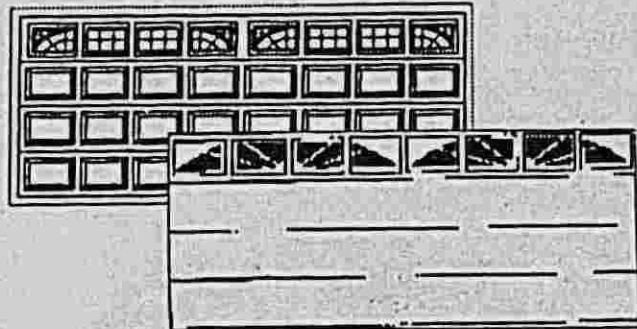

- Install night lights in bedrooms. Don't pile laundry in an area where people frequently walk.

- In the bathroom, never operate electrical gadgets near water. In the tub, use a mat or install a durable anti-slip material to keep your balance.

- Scalding water can cause serious burns. Check the water temperature and lower it to 120 degrees F.

Schmidt Implement—a family affair

In 1923, Frank Schmidt moved from the farm into Salem, Wis. and bought a farm equipment business that operated in an old livery stable. Horses were a common trade-in in those days. His son, Al Schmidt, took over the business in 1935 and led the company into years of growth and a new building in the 1960s at the intersection of Hwys. AH and 83 in Salem.

By the time Al's son, Bob replaced him in 1970, the company was changing with the community and was selling John Deere lawn and garden tractors. Currently, Bob and his son, Dave, the fourth generation of the family in the business, serve a customer base that is half non-farm. Schmidt's has grown to be one of the largest John Deere lawn equipment dealers in the state.

Schmidt Implement also sells commercial lawn mowing and landscaping equipment, tractors, as well as skid loaders.

Schmidt Implement has always strived to provide the best customer service to all they do business with. Whether you need a new spark plug or to invest in large equipment, the friendly people at Schmidt implement will take the time to make sure your needs are met. Equipment is sold assembled and ready to use with delivery service available. Financing is available on site, not only for new and used equipment, but for parts and repair services as well.

For all your equipment needs, you can rely on Schmidt Implement, family owned and operated since 1923. Call (414)843-2323 for more information.

Simplicity Mfg. celebrates 75th anniversary

Simplicity Manufacturing, Inc. was founded in 1922 by William J. Niederkorn in Port Washington, Wis., a small, family oriented community along the shores of Lake Michigan.

The first product manufactured by Simplicity Mfg., Inc. was a portable boring and grinding machine for reconditioning automobile engines. The demand for this product disappeared in 1936, when Detroit started rebuilding engines to sell directly to car and truck owners.

In 1937, Simplicity entered the outdoor power equipment industry by building two-wheel walking tractors for Montgomery Ward and Company. These became so popular that an entire line of lawn and garden equipment was soon designed by Simplicity.

The company has been making ride-on tractors since 1939 and snowthrowers since 1961. Walk behind tillers were first produced in 1955.

Simplicity has history in the commercial tractor business since 1971 that was reemphasized in 1989 when the company acquired the Middlesworth Engineering Company. The commercial riding mowers featured patented hydro steer design and exclusive steering wheel control for a zero turning radius.

In the 1990s, when legislation banned yard waste from landfills, it became increasingly difficult for homeowners to dispose of yard debris. Simplicity responded with equipment that attached to its existing tractor lines to mulch and shred grass clippings and leaves. In 1992, through the acquisition of Tornado Products Co., Simplicity entered the chipper shredder market and later expanded the line to include walk-behind chipper vacuums.

Riding lawn and garden tractors, where Simplicity has a leadership position, account for the majority of company sales. Riding equipment applications include mowing, grass collection, mulching, hauling, snow removal, plowing, cultivating, tilling, front-end loading and dozing. Several chipper vacuum, chipper/shredder, snowthrower, and rear tiller models complete a broad product line.

Simplicity Mfg., Inc. is a company that holds more than 70 patents for innovative design features. Products are developed with state-of-the-art techniques through its Computer Aided Design/Computer Aided Mfg. System (CAD/CAM). Engineering staffs utilize an in-house model shop with prototype capabilities. A 40-acre proving site facilities testing and development of new products. New designs are subjected to extreme conditions by test equipment which stimulates years of consumer use prior to the product going to market.

More than 1,300 independent dealers form the nucleus of the Simplicity distribution organization. The greatest penetration is found in the East and Midwest, with expansion occurring in the West and Southeast. Simplicity products are exported to 22 countries, including Europe, Canada, Australia, Brazil, New Zealand and parts of Asia and the Middle East.

DO-IT-YOURSELF DECORATORS

If you're a do-it-yourself decorator eager for a different look in home furnishings, you're not alone. Happily, by using a little resourcefulness and ingenuity, you can create fresh, high-quality looks.

The following tips may point you in the right direction:

- Start with quality furniture that can be easily accessorized. Select a brand that you're familiar with and pay attention to the warranty. Choose pieces that contain neutral colors, patterns and simple lines.
- Be creative with furniture finishes. Metal furniture always mixes with wood furniture, and using a variety of finishes gives the home a rich look.
- Rearrange, or exchange, furniture for new looks.

• Enhance the space in smaller rooms. Decorate in light colors and use simple window treatments—or no window treatments at all—to create the perception of a larger room.

• Have fun with your window treatments. Try a length of fabric swagged over a window or distinctive cloth napkins on a brass curtain rod to finish the room's mood.

• Substitute accessories that reflect the mood you're creating—brass candlesticks and plant holders for an elegant look or wicker baskets and fun artwork for a more comfortable atmosphere.

• Paint your exterior door. Choose a color that reflects your style and personality and works well with your home's color scheme.
